Atlantic Tanker Which Picked Up Plane Victims, to Arrive In Port at 4 P. M.

THREE OCCUPANTS PERISH

Rescue Ship Lowers Lifeboats, Rescues Men, Women Adrift in Gale-Swept Ocean.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Safe after one of the most dramatic rescues in the annals of trans-oceanic air travel, five men and five women survivors of the sunken flying boat Cavalier approached New York today aboard the tanker Esso Baytown.

They had been expected to arrive about 10 a. m. but later advices indicated the tanker might not reach its North River pier until about 4 p. m. (EST) because of rough water.

Gale-swept seas which slowed the sturdy rescue vessel to eight knots revived anew for the 10 who lived the memory of nearly 10 terror-filled hours they spent clinging to rubber lifebelts until the tanker hove to in the darkness, drawn by their cries.

Three Lose Lives.

Joy over their own miraculous rescue was tempered with sorrow at the fate of three other persons —two men passengers and a plane steward—who slipped beneath icy waves, apparently too weak from injuries for the long struggle against tempest winds and battering water.

Eight coast guard vessels gave the three up for lost last night after a thorough search of the seas where motor trouble forced the giant Bermuda-bound Imperial British airways craft to pancake into the Atlantic ocean 300 miles southeast of Cape May, N. J., during a gale Saturday afternoon.

It sank in ten minutes, forcing the 13 persons aboard to leap into the water before they could don lifesaving equipment.

Among the survivors were the wives of the two missing passengers. They were recuperating from hysterical horror engendered when, helpless to aid, they saw their weakened husband slip from hastily grabbed lifebelts to certain death.

Pilot Suffers From Shock.

All survivors were reported in "fair condition," however, except Capt. M. R. Alderson, pilot of the 19-ton, $200,000 flying boat, who suffered more from shock and exposure than the others.

SHIP SENDS SOS

Dutch Freighter Sinking, Two Vessels Rushing to Aid.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Two rescue ships neared the stricken Dutch Freighter S. S. Parklaan today as it made for the Azores—1,000 miles away—after sending an SOS in mid-Aalantic, it was leaking badly at the water line.

The British Freighter Deerpool, only 62 miles away when the SOS call first went out a 8:20 p. m. last night, expected to reach the Parklaan by daylight.

The British passenger ship Carare also was going to the Parklaan's assistance.

PRINCESS MARIA WED AT PALACE

ROME — (AP) — King Vittorio Emanuele gave his youngest daughter, the dark-eyed Princess Maria, in marriage today to Prince Louis of Bourbon-Parma, big-game hunting scion of the once-sovereign dukes of Parma.

The ceremony in the Pauline chapel of the Quirinale palace was performed by Court Chaplain Monsignor Giuseppe Beccaria, who celebrated the nuptial mass. The royal family, royal relatives from various parts of Europe, Premier Mussolini, government and Fascist party officials, chiefs of foreign diplomatic missions and a few other guests attended.

DOCTOR ACCUSED

Charged With Manslaughter In 'Prescription Error' Death.

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)—A Philadelphia physician and a young woman pharmacist were charged with homicide today in the "prescription error" death of a 15-year-old girl.

Dr. John Raftery, who was released on $5,000 bail, told Magistrate Jacob Dogole that he assumed full blame for accidentally specifying 20 grains of strychnine in the prescription instead of a half grain. He said he had been "in a hurry" to leave his office.

(AP-UP-INS)

SAN FRANCISCO — (INS) — Supporting a threatened nationwide strike on commercial network radio programs by members of the American Federation of Radio Artists, approximately 300 local members of the AFRA have voted unanimously to back the federation's stand, it announced today. Previously New York, Chicago and Hollywood locals of the organization similarly authorized the walkout.

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Mrs. Clara Kienle, 67, was bludgeoned to death today with an ax wielded by her son Charles, 45, while she was sorting laundry in the basement of their home, police said. The son was believed to be mentally deranged.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Drs. W. B. and K. W. Taylor of Pickerington, 18 miles southeast of here, reported today that "35 or 40" persons had become ill after eating buckwheat cakes. They said an investigation indicated the buckwheat flour, purchased from a farmer, had accidentally become mixed with a poisonous weed which grew near the farmer's buckwheat field.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Administration leaders began a last minute drive today to restore on the floor of the senate the $150,000,000 which the house chopped from President Roosevelt's $875,000,040 deficiency relief appropriation bill.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The treasury department on Wednesday will offer for sale $100,000,000 worth of five-year notes of the United States Housing Authority, it was announced today. Interest rates and other details will be disclosed Wednesday, it was added.

BREAK IN COLD DUE TOMORROW

Shivering Mansfielders who stoked their furnaces heavily today to stave off the chill of one of winter's severest blasts, were promised relief from the near-zero temperatures by tomorrow.

The forecast said snow and sleet tonight with the possibilities of changing to rain tomorrow with a rising temperature.

Clearing skies today brought rising temperatures, the mercury climbing to 20 above zero at noon.

An old fashioned nor'wester lashed Mansfield and most of the state yesterday, accompanied by snow flurries, and within a few hours had forced the mercury from a high of 21 above to 8 above last night.

Throughout Ohio readings ranged from 9 to 13 degrees, Cleveland and Columbus reported 13, Akron, Hamilton and Toledo had low readings of 11, Youngstown 10 above and Bowling Green 9.

The wind reached gale proportions at Akron where the velocity of 65-mile-an-hour was recorded. It was 50 miles an hour at Columbus and 32 at Toledo.

Trees were reported uprooted in various sections of the state. In Mansfield the street department was called last night to remove a huge tree which had been blown down on North Mulberry street north of West Fifth street.

SHIP ON FIRE

Firemen Extinguish Blaze In Engine Room of British Ship.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A four-alarm fire that raged more than five hours in the engine room of the Silverash, 5,311-ton British freighter, at a Brooklyn dock was brought under control early today.

Fearful that water might reach 6,000 drums of cyanide reported stored in the hold and create deadly gas fumes, firemen ordered the crew of about 35 Chinese and British to leave the vessel.

KILLS FATHER

Motorist Skids, Strikes Man, Find He's His Dad.

MUSISING, Mich. —(INS)— Arne Heitikko, 18, today swung out to avoid a pedestrian but his car skidded on the ice, struck and killed the man.

Heitikko jumped from the car, ran to the body.

It was that of his father, Konstu, 51.

SMOKE SUFFOCATES EIGHT

McGREGOR, Ia.—(U.P.)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for four adults and four children who suffocated in an apartment house fire Saturday night. The fire started in a furniture store and spread quickly to three apartments on upper floors.

TRAFFIC TAGS FLY—WATCH YOUR PARKING

DAY FORCE INCREASED

Entire Department to Hear of 'Tightening Up' Policy From Bates Tonight.

Traffic tags had begun to sprout in Mansfield today in unusual numbers as police got underway with the "stricter" law enforcement campaign, announced Saturday by Service- Safety Director Earl A. Nist, following a conference with Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

Three Developments.

The campaign developed in three major steps. They were:

1. An intensive traffic regulation enforcement campaign in the business district.

2. Creation of a "cycle patrol" of two officers, on motorcycle and sidecar, to check traffic violations.

3. Rearrangement of police shifts, resulting in addition of one officer to the first, (8 a. m. to 4 p. m.) bringing the shift strength to 12 men.

Meanwhile Chief Bates laid plans for the special meeting of all officers at headquarters tonight for a general discussion concerning the "tightening up" of the traffic regulations.

These developments are the result of a conference Saturday in which Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Nist went over the 1938 police department report with the chief, at the conclusion of which Nist said that a sustained and thorough traffic campaign had been ordered in the city.

Centered on Parking.

Nist said that emphasis would be placed on enforcement of the parking regulations. Last year the violations showed a 40 per cent decrease from 1937.

Chief Bates said that there would be no "drive" against traffic violators because he didn't like the word. Instead it would be a "continued law enforcement program" pointing particularly to parking violations.

However, the ticket issuing campaign was noted throughout the downtown district as early as Saturday as beat men began their

HEART VICTIM

A city street department employe who complained about a pain in his chest while at work this forenoon and was taken home by fellow employes, died 15 minutes after telephoning his wife and a physician.

The victim was Dennis Hess, about 50, 181 East Third street, who died of a heart attack before the physician arrived.

D. D. Orewiler, superintendent of streets, said that Hess had been engaged as a helper on a truck that was hauling wood this morning and when he complained about the pain, he was taken home.

A former employe of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, Hess was appointed as a laborer in the department by Mayor Claude M. Hunter when he took office in January, 1938.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Radio Comics to Testify at Jack Benny Smuggling Trial

Jack Benny

Kenny Baker

George Burns — Gracie Allen

Jack Pearl

Albert N. Chaperau

Top radio and screen entertainers are expected to appear in New York federal court, Jan. 24, to testify as government witnesses in the trial of Jack Benny, radio and screen comic, accused of smuggling charges. The witnesses will include Benny's wife and radio partner, Mary Livingstone; Jack Pearl, "the Baron Munchausen" of the radio; Kenny Baker, Benny program singer and stooge, and George Burns and Gracie Allen. Burns, who was indicted in the smuggling plot, assertedly engineered by Albert N. Chaperau, pseudo-diplomat, has pleaded guilty and faces a fine or imprisonment or both. Chaperau has pleaded guilty to counts involving him in the Burns case and to additional counts involving him with Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of a supreme court justice. Benny termed his indictment "amazing" and said he would fight the case to the limit.

BACKS HOSPITAL WARD INCREASE

Head of Trustees Endorses Plan to Make More Room as Patients Reach 118.

R. A. Glessner, president of the General hospital board of trustees, today endorsed the plan of Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent, for increasing ward space at the hospital, as the number of patients in the institution reached 118, an increase of three over Saturday.

Need for addition ward space was voiced Saturday by Dr. Fonkalsrud when both wards and private rooms were filled to capacity, with a "waiting list" of patients seeking admission.

"Something absolutely must be done about the ward condition," Glessner asserted. He said he was in favor of the plan suggested by Dr. Fonkalsrud and that it would be placed before the board at its annual meeting Friday night.

"I want the board to look over the situation and see what they think," he said. "It will mean making some changes and will be a considerable expense. We have been talking about additional ward space for some time but haven't come to any conclusion," he added.

At present, only the maternity

ASKS U. S. FOR PENSION FUND

Sherwood To Confer With Board On Withheld Million.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—State Welfare Director Charles Sherwood will go to Washington soon to confer with the social security board on releasing $1,000,000 of October old age pension money to Ohio, Governor Bricker said today.

"If there is anyway under the law that we can get this money," Bricker said, "we are going to make a determined effort to do so."

The board withheld the federal share of October pension money when former Governor Davey became embroiled in a controversy over compliance by Ohio with the social security act.

Become Imitators of Best, Pastor Counsels Seniors

'We Impersonate Those We Admire,' Rev. Roller Tells 91 Graduates at Baccalaureate Attended by 900.

"Choose to be imitators of the best in whatever idea or ideal you fashion for yourself," Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, told members of the January graduating class of Senior high school at baccalaureate services last night in the Presbyterian church.

The service was attended by 900 parents, friends and teachers of the 91 seniors. The church auditorium was filled.

"Though man is an independent being and capable of exercising a will that he may call his own, most all the things he does are done in imitation," Rev. Roller told the graduates. "The manner in which he does them is usually a conscious, or an unconscious imitation of the way some one else does them.

Follow Fads, Fancies.

"We impersonate those we admire and we tend to become like those with whom we associate. The unwritten law of conformity seems to be bred into our natures. We pattern our mannerisms, our mode of living, our daily habits in the complete conformity of imitation. We are followers of fads and fancies. A deep reflection will lead us to wonder if we ever do anything of our own volition."

"All through life this is so. Though we may profess to be quite independent and self-assertive, we are imitators, whether it be in the way we comb our hair, eat our food, furnish our homes, think our thoughts or conduct our lives. We follow others with the profound satisfaction of being able to do what they do, and go where they go, utterly oblivious to the direction and reactions upon our character and our personality. The herd instinct is strong within us. We dislike to be in the minority. We fear to be different from the world about us."

Rev. Roller asserted that the "great secret of living lies within five things," and then enumerated them.

He said they were:

1. The presistent staying in the presence of the best. 2. The persistent staying in the presence of great truth. 3. The persistent staying in the presence of the great

COSTS LOWER

Power Charges Decreased in Major Cities, U. S. Says.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A general downward trend in power costs was shown today in a report by the federal power commission on a recent survey which listed ranges of $2.12 to $6.25 per 100 kilowatt hours of electricity to residential consumers in major American cities.

The report listed Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Hamilton, O., among communities with lowest residential light bills.

It showed Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati had low bills of 60 cents for 15 kilowatt hours per month, and Cleveland also with low rates of 85 cents for 25 kilowatt hours and $1.27 for 40. Hamilton had 56 cents for 15 and 94 cents for 25.

TAKES JOB WITH DAVEY COMPANY

Hassenplug Resigns as Superintendent of State Buildings.

TIFFIN — (AP) — Xenophon G. Hassenplug, maintenance superintendent in the state highway department during the final months of the Martin L. Davey administration, announced today his resignation as superintendent of state buildings.

Carl G. Wahl, new state public works director, named him to the state building position.

Hassenplug said he would become a traveling engineer for the Davey Compressor company of Kent, with three states as his territory and his headquarters in Toledo.

RURAL BOARDS STUDY 2 PLANS

School Heads of 3 Districts Given Choice of Merger or One-Year Trial Set-up.

School boards in three rural districts in northern Richland county today were considering two proposals of the county board of education for consolidation of the districts which would bring their 630 pupils together in one school unit.

Failing to agree on a re-districting plan at a joint meeting with the county board Saturday at the courthouse, boards from the Union rural, Butler township and Bloominggrove districts were given their choice of a complete merger of the schools in a four-township area or a one-year trial set-up under a board representing the four townships.

The trial plan would consolidate administration of the schools for one year, leaving the present buildings in operation, and at the end the the period the district board would formulate a plan for providing building facilities for the pupils.

Action on the consolidation plan was deferred until the last Saturday in February when the rural boards will be asked to submit their decision to the county board.

Principal opposition to the consolidation plan at Saturday's meeting came from the Butler township board which has waged a battle in the past year to keep its high school at Adario.

The high school, which has few-

(By Associated Press)

BARCELONA — United States authorities decided today to remove Americans from the Barcelona area as the Spanish government threw all its resources into a last-stand defense of its capital.

The United States officials here arranged to summon the 7,050-ton United States Cruiser Omaha which is at Villefranche, on the French Riviera, about 12 hours' sailing distance from northeast Spain.

Told to 'Be Prepared.'

Walter D. Thurston, American charge d'affaires, said he would call for the Omaha tonight. Vice Consul Douglas Flood notified Americans to be prepared for the ship. He said about 30 would leave.

(United States officials in Barcelona were said to have a list of 100 civilians, mostly Puerto Ricans and Filipinos, besides about 50 wounded American veterans of the Spanish government's international brigade who have been mustered out of the army but have not yet been able to leave Spain.)

The Americans will leave from Caldetas, where United States officials have taken a villa.

With the Spanish government under a drastic decree of a "full state of war" as Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent armies pressed steadily closer to its capital, the United States embassy also was expected to be removed.

Among the estimated 150 Americans still in Catalonia, including Filipinos and naturalized citizens, were a few bankers, telephone executives, business men and newspaper men.

Will Evacuate City.

On the third day of continuous insurgent air raids on Barcelona, the government announced that the building of a ring of fortifications around the city and evacuation of the whole civilian popula-

JURY CONVENES

Starts Investigation of County Treasurer's Office.

ASHLAND — The Ashland county grand jury convened at 10:10 a. m. today in the common pleas court to investigate alleged irregularities in the sales tax department of the county treasurer's office.

Judge C. C. Chapman did not deliver a specific charge to the jury, but stated that he had sufficient evidence, including an alleged admission by Treasurer H. O. Faber, that a shortage exists in the office.

An appeal of the two surety companies to be relieved of continuing bonds amounting to $40,000 on the treasurer will be heard in common pleas court Jan. 31. The appeal was filed last week when the county commissioners denied an application of release.

WINS DONAHEY

Roosevelt's $875,000,000 WPA Fund Favored by Ohio Senator.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Donahey (D-Ohio) said today he would support the president's request for an $875,000,000 emergency relief fund.

"It is the first duty of a nation to feed itself," said Donahey in a statement. "We can deny ourselves a few canals and memorials, even a battleship, to produce food and shelter for unfortunate people who are in need."

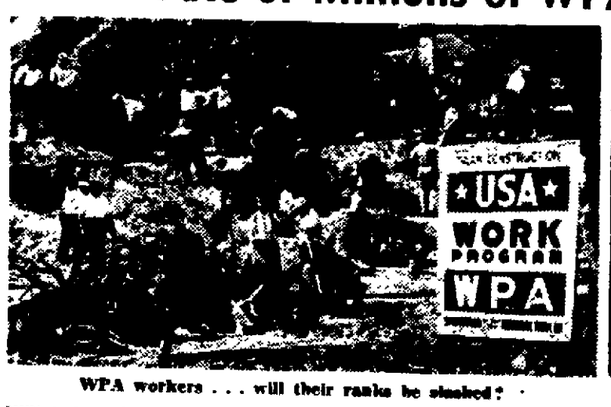
PLANS ACTION

Thomas Ready to Open Perkins Impeachment Proceedings.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R) New Jersey, may make his long-threatened impeachment move against Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in the house today or tomorrow.

Delayed because of extensive investigation into Miss Perkins' handling of immigration and labor problems, Thomas indicated that he is about ready to seek impeachment proceedings against her.

Fate of Millions of WPA Workers Rests in Hands of Congress



WPA workers . . . will their ranks be slashed?

Col. Francis C. Harrington.

Broadline . . . will these be increased?

Will it be relief or WPA for a million Americans? Congress will decide as solons on Capitol Hill debate a planned reduction in the president's proposed $875,000,000 voted by the house is approved by the senate. This reduction of $150,000,000 under the appropriation asked by the president represents the difference between "orderly contraction of WPA and violent contraction that would cause want and suffering," Harrington contends; cutting WPA workers from 3,017,035 to 1,930,000 by June.

Widening Breach In UAW Ranks Perils CIO's Future

FISTS FLY AS DETROIT AUTO UNION MEETS

Detroit Hears Martin Will Form Independent Group and Join A. F. of L.

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—The final outcome of the bitter internal warfare in the United Automobile Workers, it appeared today, may be of vital significance to the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The UAW, claiming a membership in excess of 375,000, is one of the largest unions in the CIO and has contracts with all but one of the major manufacturers in a field virtually untouched by the rival American Federation of Labor.

Some labor observers were convinced a definite division of the UAW cannot be averted and that the loss of any sizable number of UAW members would be a blow to John L. Lewis' organization.

Homer Martin, UAW president, and Lewis, some sources said, have been on the verge of breaking for two years and they pointed to recent developments as indicating that the rupture has become a reality.

Sides With Martin Foes.

In the convergence of 16 CIO directors and organizers on Detroit over the week-end and in a Pittsburgh conference between CIO Vice-president Philip Murray and two of Martin's UAW opponents these observers found substantiation for their belief that Lewis was siding with the anti-Martinites.

There have been rumors, about which Martin has been non-committal, that he and his followers would form an independent union, and, in time, even possibly apply for re-admission into the AFL, which it departed in 1936.

President David Dubinsky has withdrawn the Ladies' Garment workers, with approximately 450,000 members, from the CIO. Dubinsky and Martin are said to be close friends.

Physical conflict broke out in the UAW row yesterday at a meeting of the Detroit Plymouth local, whose leaders had been removed by Martin and reinstated by the 15 international executive board members he suspended last week. They, in turn, suspended Martin and drew up eight indictments of impeachment.

Three hundred police were on hand at the auditorium and soon broke up the fighting, which began on the rostrum, but there were numerous black eyes and bruised chins.

Martin and his board, composed of four international board members who escaped suspension and remained loyal to him, met yesterday with leaders of locals in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin. He said they represented about 180 locals, with 200,000 members, "and pledged me their support."

Up and Down THE STREET

The Mansfield board of education had an unwieldly relic on its hands today, and members hadn't decided what to do with it. The board took over the old bell from the tower of the John Simpson school building, and since it is made of brass, members figured it has monetary as well as sentimental value. Supt. W. L. Miller estimated it is worth at least $500. Placed in the tower when the building was erected in 1891, the bell weighs two and a half tons.

An interesting slant on parking meters comes from Palm Beach, Fla., where the machines were installed last week in the business section. The Palm Beach Post, forwarded by W. E. Orbison, 21 Brinkerhoff avenue, shows three blocks in the business district in which only one car is parked, while in nearby residential sections the machines were parked wheel to wheel on both sides of the street. Which would seem to indicate that the meters solve the traffic problem in the business section even if the meters don't "pay for themselves."

Although it wasn't planned there was a touch of American Colonial days at the Junior High school dance Friday night at the Y. W. C. A. While the 150 boys and girls were dancing, all of the lights suddenly went out. Candles were brought out and lighted and placed on the mantle above the fireplace. The youngsters danced by candlelight for more than a half hour before an electrician arrived.

STRICKEN AT 94

Mrs. Anna Hare, Oldest Bellville Resident, Dies at Home.

BELLVILLE—Mrs. Anna Hare, 94, Bellville's oldest resident, died at her home early Sunday morning. Mrs. Hare had been in ill health for a number of years but her death came unexpectedly.

Born on a farm four miles west of Bellville, Mrs. Hare spent her entire life in this county except for six years in Columbus. She had resided in Bellville 56 years. Her family came to Richland county 109 years ago and settled near Bellville. In 1876 she married Abraham Hare who preceded her in death nine years ago.

Mrs. Hare moved to Columbus after her marriage but returned to Bellville in 1883 when her husband purchased a drug store here.

Included among the nephews and nieces surviving is Miss Edith Hare, who cared for Mrs. Hare since the death of her husband. Funeral services will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Tuesday with Rev. George Caldwell of Orrville officiating. Mrs. Hare will be buried in her wedding dress. Interment will be in the Bellville cemetery.

Dr. Leo E. Price of Shelby today had been re-employed as physician for the Richland county home by the board of county commissioners for one year.

Dr. Price has attended the county home patients since 1936. He will receive $5 each for weekly visits to the home and an additional $5 each for emergency calls.

SENATE ENDING HOPKINS DEBATE

Vote on Confirmation of New Commerce Secretary Due in Chamber Tonight.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Walter F. George, (D-Ga.), anti-New Dealer who won re-election last fall despite President Roosevelt's personal attempt to defeat him, was scheduled to make the final attack today against the nomination of Harry L. Hopkins to be secretary of commerce.

Limitation of debate, permitting each senator to speak but once and for not more than 30 minutes, was expected to make a vote posible before tonight's adjournment. Plans during the week-end recess for more speeches, however, might delay final action another day.

Opponents of Hopkins conceded that confirmation was certain. Although the opposition could count on an almost solid Republican vote, they admitted that 30 votes against his elevation to the cabinet was the maximum expected.

George has announced that he will vote against Hopkins' confirmation, attacking him because of intervention in last fall's political campaign.

TRAIN VICTIM DIES OF INJURIES

Fredericktown Man, 74, Stricken In Mt. Vernon Hospital.

FREDERICKTOWN —Injuries suffered four months ago when struck by a train near here, yesterday caused the death of Adam K. Rinehart, 74, at M. and S. hospital in Mt. Vernon.

Rinehart with his wife, Anna, were returning home from the Fredericktown street fair, late in September, when their car was struck at a railroad crossing south of here. Mrs. Rinehart was killed in the accident. Rinehart suffered a fracture of both legs anl serious body injuries.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Anna Dressell, Middle City, O., and Mrs. Martha Barton of Fredericktown.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Meredith funeral home here with Rev. W. H. Petry officiating. Burion will be in Forest cemetery.

BROMFIELD BROCHURE BERATES CHAMBERLAIN FOR 'SELLING OUT'

The most recent work of Louis Bromfield, novelist, who recently returned from 15 years in Europe to purchase a home near his native Mansfield, is a 32-page brochure, "England—A Dying Oligarchy," published by Harper and Brothers, which is attracting attention throughout the country today.

The brochure contains a penetrating analysis of Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy of appeasement and predicts that the next war "will arise in the East" for unless Japan is exhausted by the rape of China, she will exclude all other nations from trade in China, and then we must act."

"Mr. Bromfield," his publishers point out, "is one of Mr. Chamberlain's severe critics. His sense of outrage, that a prime minister ambitions to wear a halo should have sold out democracy to the gangsters, has inspired this effective commentary on perhaps the most significant event of our times."

Bromfield says that under the Chamberlain and Baldwin administrations the prestige of Great Britain has been slipping lower and lower.

"Partly by circumstances, partly by choice, Great Britain was the leader of the democracies of the world," he writes. "Under the national government (of Great Britain) this leadership has rapidly been slipping away, notably in the direction of the United States. It was not that the American people or its government sought this leadership. . . . It has been thrust upon them by the weakness and evasion of Great Britain's national government."

Bromfield charges Chamberlain and his inner cabinet with selling European democracies down the river for a flash-in-the-pan prosperity which has benefited only a small group of Great Britain's people—the shopkeepers, as he terms them, of England. The British policy of appeasing the "European gangsters" and their betrayal of Czechoslovakia, Austria, Spain, China, Abyssinia, France and the League of Nations," was "for the sake of trade," he writes.

"For 12 years," the novelist says, "I have spoken and written in Europe for an ideal—the ideal of a trianguler alliance between Great Britain, the United States and France. The alliance between England and France is one of necessity . . . but a free choice remains for the United States, and now, after the events and behavior of the national government (Great Britain) during the past seven years, it seems scarcely possible for either the American government or people to place any faith in the British government."

He says that in the event of war in the East, with the United States as a participant, this country could not count on Great Britain's help. "Such a government may prefer to go on selling oil and guns and planes to Japan."

He predicts that Great Britain, as an empire, is doomed to extinction, and that out of it will come a League of British Free States.

"What Great Britain needs is a great man," he says in conclusion, "a great leader! What it has is a clique of second-rate nineteenth century politicians trying, weary ana bewildered, to cope with twentieth century problems."

The brochure is intended for distribution throughout England as well as America and France.

TIRO EDITOR DIES

W. W. Davis, 52, Published Tiro World Since 1912.

TIRO—William W. Davis, 52, editor and publisher of the Tiro Weekly World, died early this morning at his home. He had been ill for several months.

Mr. Davis was born Aug. 1, 1886 on a farm east of here and had lived in this vicinity all his life. In 1912 he purchased the Tiro World. Recently he retired as clerk of the Tiro Consolidated school board after serving 20 years. He was clerk of the village of Auburn township at the time of his death.

He was a member of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics and the Modern Woodmen of America, both of Shelby, and the Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, Irene; two sons, Gaylord of Columbus and Wallace at home; two daughters, Helen and Mary Lou at home; four brothers, Lewis and Avery of Canton and Elmer and Cortland of this community, and a sister, Mrs. Carl Fry, of Tiro.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Lutheran church with the Rev. Robert Miller officiating, assisted by Rev. J. C. Campbell of Plymouth. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

EXPECT ACTION TODAY ON FUND OF 5 MILLIONS

Committee Leaders Hope to Send Measure to Senate for Passage Tomorrow.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Heeding entreaties of officials in cities hard-pressed for immediate indigent aid, house welfare committeemen made ready today to recommend enactment of the new administration's partial relief measures when the general assembly resumes work tonight.

J. Harry McGregor, majority floor leader of the house, said as legislative session ended last week that he hoped the house would approve a $5,000,000 relief appropriation bill by tomorrow and send it to the senate, where it would get the right-of-way.

Republican leaders also anticipated prompt approval of bills to relax restrictions on municipalities' special accounts, enabling them to raise funds nor relief appropriations.

No measure to distribute relief grants on the basis of needs was given much chance of winning house approval unless it contained an iron-clad matching provision.

See Rural Threat.

House leaders predicted rural members would block any bill without the matching clause and demand distribution of grants on a tax duplicate formula, which previously has left urban centers with deficits while small counties received more relief money than needed.

Welfare Director Charles Sherwood said legislation would be introduced today to revamp his department into four divisions, one to supervise relief, old age pensions and other forms of public assistance. The others would handle general department business, prison and parole matters, and mental diseases.

Meanwhile, Finance Director William S. Evatt swung into the task of writing Gov. John W. Bricker's economy program into the biennial budget.

Evatt said he would confer with departmental officials over their estimated needs in an effort to effect a $6,000,000 saving during the two lears of Bricker's administration, without resorting to new taxes or increasing present levies.

The finance director pared $3,000,000 from the six-months budget, resulting in job eliminations and consolidations which cut more than 2,000 employes from the state payroll.

DIES AT AGE 71

Mrs. Elizabeth Perry Stricken at Home Today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Perry, 71, wife of Edward Perry, died unexpectedly at the home, 272 West Fifth street, today. She had been in failing health for two years, but her death was unexpected.

Born in South Wales, Jan. 18, 1868, Mrs. Perry came to this country in 1896, and to this city 23 years ago.

Active in Welsh society affairs in Mansfield, Mrs. Perry was past president of the Mansfield Welsh club and a member of the Baptist church. She was also interested in Christian Science.

Survivors include three daughters, Mrs. William Karrer and Mrs. George P. Gernhart of Mansfield, and Mrs. V. H. Meyer of Massillon; a son, William of Massillon; a sister, Mrs. Margaret Jenkins of New Kensington, Pa., and six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Private funeral services will be held at the home at 1 p. m. Wednesday with Carl Cromer, reader of the First Church of Christ Scientist, officiating. Friends may call at the home until Wednesday noon.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Infantile Paralysis Fight Needs Money and Pegler Is Glad to Help It Along

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It is a mystery to me where a few such individuals as Mrs. Roosevelt, Dorothy Thompson and Hugh Johnson find enough hours in twenty-four, or enough energy and strength, to turn out a column and, for chores, serve on committees for the prevention of this and that, and organize or assist in campaigns, make frequent public addresses on behalf of causes and hop-scotch all over the place in planes and trains.

This remark comes of a visit to Johnson's quarters in the St. Regis, where he is currently turning the crank for the New York campaign of the Infantile Paralysis foundation. He has the same deadline problem as any other seal in the column business, a full-time job in my own case, but the place is cluttered with letters that have to be answered right away, mimeographed and flimsy stuff, and callers come to discuss the jams and angles which occur in all such promotions, and the phone is forever giving him a yank from one room to the other and back again.

These things are always assisted by well-meaning and generous volunteers, but in every scrub organization there are a certain number of earnest but helpless "now what do I do?" guys, and when a man is making publicity there is a constant risk that some officious clown will blab some horrible release to the press or radio that will queer everything in five minutes.

Hugh has been trying to drop a fight into Madison Square Garden but has bounced off the stout resolutions of the soulless corporations, bruised in his feelings and bleeding in his soul.

They won't give him a fight, figuring that a fight is big bolt of goods right off their shelves, and more than charity has a right to ask of any individual contributor, which is fair, at that, but no encouragement to a man with a boiling nature who has lathered himself into a personal fury against the little invisible bug that bites children in some mysterious way and leaves them with withered legs.

"One of the most hateful, slinking and deceptive of all enemies of man," he calls it, and in the midst of his other frets and duties he bangs out a speech, equivalent in volume to two days' work at his pay-job with the papers, giving infantile paralysis hell, and finds time to rear back and holler it into the mikes at some studio or into the faces of a lot of prominent citizens who need hopping up for the cause.

It is going to come out, anyway, so it might as well be admitted that the sled is scraping bare ground this year for two reasons, both deplorable. One is that people associate the infantile paralysis drive with Warm Springs, Ga., and think all the net goes down there to build up a cure which obviously can't ever be sufficient for all the polio cases, as they are called, in the United States. That isn't so, but a lot of people think it is, and figure that Warm Springs must have enough money by now.

The fact is that this year half the money raised in any community stays right there to buy local equipment, such as braces and rolling chairs for stricken kids and oversized hospital bathtubs in which they may receive about the same effect that is to be had in the pool at the Springs. The Springs really just served as ballyhoo for the drive against the disease. It has limited accommodations which aren't free, but the publicity about the water-cure, as you might call it, centered attention on infantile paralysis, so Warm Springs served a helpful purpose.

The rest of the money, the other 50 per cent, goes into the national fund to pay for research and to provide a pool from which separate localities can be allotted money in addition to their 50 per cent if their local problems are especially bad.

The other reason is that some people who don't like President Roosevelt or any part of the New Deal think the birthday ball, which is the climax of each local campaign, is ballyhoo for the administration or the president personally.

"That makes me sick," Hugh said in one of his speeches. "I am not so hot about parts of the administration myself, but I am not going to take my peeve out on 7,000 crippled children in New York City. Infantile paralysis is neither Democratic nor Republican, New Deal nor Old Guard. It is a child-killer working both sides of the street and all parties and creeds and races all the time.

That political objection seems a punk excuse when Johnson himself, one of the most persistent and noisy critics of Mr. Big and the teacher's pets in Washington these days, accepts the job of steaming up the citizens for this fund and gives out of his own pocket in the form of hotel and phone bills and many other expenses ten or a hundreds times as much dough as such objectors might be willing to give if they couldn't find an excuse.

I am afraid, I hope, that for once I have been guilty of ballyhoo.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It wasn't in the headlines, but an important movie deal was consummated the other day. Blanche Williams left Eleanor Powell and transferred her services to Hedy Lamarr.

The Lamarr girl, who has been getting herself called a "second Harlow" for the ease with which she wins the devotion of set workers, clinched the title in acquiring Blanche — because Blanche was Jean's trusted friend as well as personal maid up to the end.

The transfer of Blanche from Powell to Lamarr was, I understand, accomplished rather easily but with some of the subtlety that accompanies more ballyhooed "big deals" in the industry. Lamarr watched the girl, became acquainted easily as she does with other studio workers, but what next transpired is not recorded. However, Blanche's name was on Hedy's generous Christmas list, and next thing Blanche's name was on Hedy's payroll.

Miss Russell—and Hazel—are working with Bob Montgomery on a comedy called "Fast and Loose," and we were reminded of last year's "feud" between the co-stars.

It happened on "Night Must Fall," and—the story was—Montgomery and Russell didn't care for each other one bit.

Like so many "feud" stories, this one hasn't held up. Russell and the Montgomerys entertained jointly at a holiday party, and on the set the other day, waiting for the cameras, Bob and Rosalind were going into mild hysterics at each other's clowning, which didn't look like any grand hate.

In this day when tie-ups between the movies and commercial products are too common, I like to think of James Cruze and his "free car" on "The Million Dollar Mystery" of early movie serial fame.

Director Cruze was then an actor, leading man in this phenomenally successful chapter play. As a sleuthing reporter Cruze was equipped with a modest car of a make no longer to be had. Anyway, midway in the works the exploitation department suggested that Cruze, for the publicity he was giving the jaloppy, ought to rate a free one.

And so it was arranged, with everybody happy—until one day the cautious car-makers announced that since Cruze had a car they saw no need of a gift.

Cruze's anger was righteous and quick, and his revenge as speedy. Cruze had this written into the script.

The reporter hero is chug-chugging on the trail of the villain in his little car. At the crucial moment the car breaks down, with a rattle and a groan, visible if not audible. Hero hops out, looks disgusted, and just then an old farmer comes up, inquires the trouble. Trouble? says our hero, in subtitles. "This . . . thing has broken down again. Fix it. Naw, it's yours if you want it—I'd never put up with it again!

SOCIETY & CLUBS

INDIAN BARRISTER TO BE GUEST SPEAKER

Bhicoo Batlivala, Official and Sportswoman, Will Talk to Federation Members on "The Struggle for Independence."

FOR THE first lecture-luncheon of this year the Mansfield Federation of Women will present Bhicoo Batlivala, the first woman to be appointed to an official position in one of the states of India, as guest speaker Thursday at 11 a. m. in the auditorium of the Madison theater.

Miss Batlivala, who is both a barrister and sportswoman, will speak on "India: The Struggle for Independence." In her talk she will tell of the Congress, which represents a large and rapidly growing body of advanced thinkers, the future of India within the Empire, India and the League of Nations, and the influence of Gandhi and Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

The speaker, who is only 26 years old, attended Cheltenham Ladies college in England, and practiced law in England for several years before her appointment as personal assistant to the Minister of Education at Baroda, India. Later she became legal adviser for a London film company.

She has been prominent in English court circles and in legal affairs in England, but has also kept close touch with her people thus qualifying herself to speak about her native land.

Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock at the Women's Club following the address to be given by Miss Batlivala. Reservations will be accepted at the club house until Wednesday evening.

Plan Session Of Auxiliary At Crestline Tea Room On Feb. 18

THE next regular meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail association will be held at the Blue Lantern in Crestline on Feb. 18. The hostesses, who will be charge that day, are Mrs. F. C. McNeal, Mrs. W. C. Lambert, Mrs. C. B. Harmon, and Mrs. E. G. Anderson, all of Crestline.

The meeting for this month was held Saturday afternoon, with Mrs. E. G. Giffin serving as chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. The members of her committee were Mrs. E. W. Dye, Mrs. L. E. McMichael of Bucyrus, and Mrs. W. G. Marshall and Mrs. C. V. King of Crestline.

A one o'clock luncheon at Schwarz's Tavern on the Lexington avenue road was an event of Saturday with 17 members and 11 guests in attendance. The group was seated at a long table, which was decorated with green and white appointments and a centerpiece of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. L. S. Wilson, president of the auxiliary, conducted the business session, at which time the members responded to roll call by telling something new that appeared in the spring seed catalogue. It was announced that Mrs. V. Q. Stauffer, a member from Forest, is recovering, and Mrs. L. E. McMichael, a member from Bucyrus, is ill at her home. Mrs. C. E. Jones of Crestline was the winner of a comfort made by the group.

During the afternoon's program, Mrs. Dye led the group in singing several songs and sang an auxiliary song as a vocal solo. Mrs. O. B. Grafmiller furnished the piano accompaniment. Two stories, "The Tree That Didn't Get Trimmed" and "The Round Robins' Red Barn" were then read by Mrs. J. C. Appleman.

The group had contests during the remainder of the afternoon, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. B. O. Brenner and Mrs. R. E. Culler.

Twins Entertained With Birthday Buffet Party

The birthdays of twins was the occasion for a party Saturday night at the home of Ralph White, 340 Sturges avenue. Robert White and his sister, Mrs. Ralph Meeker, were honored by 33 relatives and friends at the home of their father.

Guests spent the evening in cards and dancing, and the buffet supper was served from a table decorated with a large birthday cake. A number of gifts were presented to the honorees whose birthday anniversaries were Jan. 21.

Celebrate Anniversary in Akron With Son, Cousins

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dickson, who were celebrating their 53rd wedding anniversary yesterday, motored with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dickson, Ausdale avenue, to Akron where they were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Krippen, cousins of the elder Dicksons.

In addition to Mr. Dickson, the couple has two children, Mrs. Richard Newlon and Mrs. B. G. Campbell, both of Mansfield. Mr. and Mrs. Dickson, who make their home at the Ausdale avenue address in the winter, are from Martel. They were married Jan. 22, 1886.

The rocking chair is essentially an American product said to have been originated by Benjamin Franklin.

Louis Bromfield To Speak Before Parents' Group

Today will be a real event in Parent-Teacher circles when Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author and Pulitzer prize winner, speaks before parents, teachers and guests of the Country Day school. Mr. Bromfield will talk at 8 o'clock this evening, according to George Draffan, who is in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Guest accommodations may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Vivien Haynes, director of the school, it was stated this morning.

Wednesday at 6:45 p. m. the Chamber of Commerce rooms will be the scene of the executive board meeting, followed by the regular meeting of the council of parents and teachers at 7:30 p. m.

Dr. R. C. Wise will speak on "Sight Conservation" before the council. Demonstration of special education will be given by Miss Marian Snyder of the school for the deaf, and Miss Leona Snyder of the conservation of vision unit, and Mrs. Ward Ingraham of the Sunshine school.

Dinner At Lotz Home In Honor Of Anniversary

At noon yesterday a group of 15 relatives were seated at a table beautifully decorated with a large wedding cake and bowls of red and white roses for a family dinner served in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lotz, 36 Myers avenue, who were celebrating their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lotz were married Jan. 22, 1914, at the First English Lutheran church by the late Rev. F. P. Long. They are the parents of three daughters, Mrs. Carl Shank, Ashland, Mrs. William Halvax, Mansfield, and Laurel Jean, at home.

A number of greetings and wires in addition to a gift of silver and flowers were received by the couple. Other guests at the affair were from Toledo and Crestline.

Couple Wed 30 Years; Friends Give Party

A number of Mansfielders were celebrating wedding anniversaries this week-end, and among them were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Csordas, Newman street, who were married at Newport, Ky., on Jan. 20, 1909. A group of 14 of their friends surprised them Saturday night. It was also their son, Joseph's, birthday.

The evening was spent in cards and games, and refreshments were served. The guests presented the couple with a gift as did the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Csordas are the parents of Stephen, jr., Mrs. L. O. Stanchfield, Joseph, William and Mary.

The bride, who is a graduate of Mt. Gilead high school, is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Kaler is an employe of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company. Mr. and Mrs. Kaler will make their home here at 50 Spring street.

Informally Speaking...

Monday, Jan. 23.

Lucy, Dear:

The weatherman says we'll have some zero weather today—and since we can't escape the icy blasts ourselves—it seems to me that the nicest things we can talk about are the southern vacations of some of our fortunate friends.

* * * * *

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tappan were among the passengers who sailed from New York Saturday on the annual Raymond-Whitcomb cruise to the South Sea islands. There will be stops at 15 places in five of the great Polynesian archipelagos and New Guiana. I understand that a feature of this year's cruise will be its many calls in Africa—where there will be visits to Lourenco Marques, Durban and Port Elizabeth on the East Coast, and to Cape Town, Dakar, Marrakech, Casablanca and Rabat on the West Coast, as well as the Island of St. Helena. Lucky people—those Tappans!

* * * * *

WHILE speaking of cruises . . . Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Siegenthaler are taking a fine one, too. They plan to drive down to New Orleans next Friday, and from there they will sail on a 37-day Caribbean cruise . . . they'll go back to New Orleans for their car and then stop off at the interesting cities on the way back to Mansfield.

* * * * *

This is the kind of a day that makes you wish you were wintering in Florida—and there are some lucky Mansfielders who are . . . Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Tingley, Mrs. John Barr, Mrs. V. E. Reinhart and Mrs. O. B. Seidel have already arrived in Orlando, Fla., and plan to remain there for the rest of the winter season. . . . William Hursh and Ralph Constance left Early yesterday morning for the southern state . . . and they will be gone two weeks . . . touring about to all the principal cities.

* * * * *

Before we stop talking about southern vacations, I must tell you of Gretchen and Paul Wilmore's trip early next month. They're driving down to Hollywood, Fla., (with their two small children, Shirley and Paul Woodley) . . . and plan to stop off at Raleigh, N. C., and Atlanta, Ga., on the way down. While Gretchen and the children are in Hollywood, Paul is going on a business trip to the principal cities in the southwest and on to the Pacific coast—which would be nice even on a business trip! Shirley is just about the most anxious member of the Wilmore family these days—she even likes school down south—because they learn so many new things in such an interesting manner—the young vacationers from such places as England, South America and Cuba tell their classmates of the customs of their countries.

* * * * *

INCIDENTALLY, the Wilmores decided on Hollywood for their headquarters because there are so many of their friends there . . . The Emerson Wellers are wintering there . . . and so are Ruth and Henry Talmadge from Mt. Gilead.

* * * * *

Wednesday will be an exciting day for Mrs. James Hill, as she's leaving then to spend the next couple weeks visiting with her two sons, Paul and Doug. Doug's a senior at Culver, while Paul and his wife reside in Wilmette, Ill. . . . By the way, it was a picture of Paul's two small children which did the trick—and made Peg homesick to see her family again.

* * * * *

Heard from Charleston, W. Va., over the week-end that Melva (Graham) Chernoff is conducting an unusual Saturday radio program at WCHS, in Charleston, of which her husband, Howard, is assistant general manager. I'm sure you remember Howard and Melva—he used to be advertising manager of The News-Journal, and she was on the ad staff. Melva's program is called "Saturday Recess," and it's for youngsters from eight to 12 years old. The broadcast is in a studio "classroom" and Melva is at the "teacher's desk." She asks her pupils questions, which they try to answer and are then graded . . . with the best ones winning cash prizes. Melva also takes part in radio dramas originating at WCHS and sells "air time" as well. Quite a versatile gal, isn't she?

* * * * *

ALL THE questions you asked in your last letter about our old friend, Katherine McCormick, made me extremely curious . . . so I've written her . . . relaying all your queries and adding some of my own. So we'll hope I get a reply before next Monday . . . and if I do, I'll tell you all the news.

Lovingly,

MARIANNE.

REVEAL ENGAGEMENT AT INFORMAL PARTY

Miss Vivian Stevenson Will Become Bride of Harry Calvert, Columbus, Feb. 11 at First United Brethren Church.

AT AN INFORMAL party Saturday evening given by Mrs. A. J. Stevenson and her daughter, Catherine, the engagement of Vivian Stevenson to Harry Calvert, Columbus, was announced. Miss Stevenson, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, Shepherd road, will become the bride of Mr. Calvert at 11:30 a. m. Feb. 11 at the First United Brethren church.

Pastel flowers and miniature baskets containing gumdrop bouquets were used as decorations. The baskets were presented as favors to the 17 guests, and the one received by Miss Mildred Strome concealed a tiny scroll which revealed the wedding plans.

The bride-elect attended Mansfield Senior high school, and was graduated from Otterbein college at Westerville. Mr. Calvert attended the Franklin Institute at Columbus. Both are employed in the main office of the Ohio Fuel Gas company at Columbus.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Kay Calvert, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, Miss Helen Thorburn, and Miss Beatrice Whitmer, all of Columbus, and Mrs. Paul Dipert of Vanlue.

Vanus Heichels Have Party On 25th Anniversary

A color scheme of yellow and white was used for the serving of luncheon to 34 guests Saturday night when Mr. and Mrs. Vanus Heichel, Penn avenue, entertained in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. The house was decorated with a variety of flowers, and entertainment included readings and music.

Mr. and Mrs. Heichel, who were married Jan. 24, 1914, are the parents of one son, Howard. Among the relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dutel who recently moved to Mansfield from Portland, Me. Mr. Dutel is Mrs. Heichel's brother.

Members of the Willing club and their husbands were among the guests for the party. Ruth Swisher and Rita Mae Zimmer gave the readings during the entertainment, and a pantomime of the events in Mrs. Heichel's life was given.

Happy Eight Club Plays Cards At Miss O'Brien's

Members of the Happy Eight club were entertained last evening at the home of Miss Esther O'Brien, 41 Greenwood avenue. Five hundred was the diversion of the evening, with score prizes going to the Misses Glada Green and Clara Heydinger.

Refreshments were served at the close of the play with a color scheme in keeping with the approaching Valentine season. Mrs. Margaret Yarga has invited the group to her home on Dawson avenue for the next meeting, Jan. 29. Miss Heydinger was a guest of the club last evening.

When Mahogany was first used in England, it was called Spanish Mahogany because it came from the Spanish colonies in the West Indies.

Plenty of Ways to Tell If It's Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It's the old, old question—"how do I know whether I'm really in love with him or not? I miss him when he's not here and we have no heavy date in prospect. And sometimes when he is here and we're not going anywhere, I just feel bored."

That's the perfect test, sister. You're not in love, or you wouldn't feel bored for a moment, even if HE happens to qualify as the well-known human bromide.

When you're head over heels in love, there are certain unmistakable symptoms. When he arrives, it's as if all the Klieg lights went on at once. Your heart soars, then indulges in somersaults. If he still drives a Model T, treats you to a cup of coffee and a hot dog sandwich, you'll feel you went "bye bye" in a limousine and the hand-out was as nectar and ambrosia.

Do you suffer from hallucinations about his appearance? Does he seem an Appollo-like creature to you, when in reality he has a face that only a mother could love? Do you feel he could give pointers in love-making to Erroll Flynn or Robert Taylor, that all said and done, he's better looking than either of them? That's love.

No girl in love sees a man as he actually is, or can judge the impression he makes on others. Falling genuinely in love, you see, is an ecstatic form of madness with all the violent symptoms. An acid test about this business of falling in love is, "Are you in love with HIM or the good times he gives you?"

There's another infallible test for discovering the true from the false in love. Do you long to darn HIS socks? Would you love to go with HIM to the haberdasher's and help pick out HIS neckties, which would bring out HIS good points, better than the things HE chooses himself?

Do you dream over preparing his favorite dishes and think how enchanting it would be to make his coffee, cook his breakfast, cheer him on his way to business in the morning? Do you dream of a little flat or bungalow which will be a model of good housekeeping?

These are all symptoms not to be misunderstood, because real love has in it so much of the maternal. You want to do things for him, to keep him well and happy, rather than take from him to the limit of his pay envelope.

The kind of love that lasts and warrants the tag "they lived happily ever after," is half-wifely and half-maternal.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WITH a gay little laugh Mary forestalled my answer to Noel's query concerning the chance of his father's finding out about their little trip.

"The plan's fool-proof, darling," she assured him. "Can't you see it is? There isn't a chance in a thousand that he'll sniff even the ear of a mouse."

"I suppost not," Noel said with doubting Thomas inflections in his voice. "I wish I were as sure of my get-away."

"Oh! I didn't tell you," I said quickly. "Your uncle has planned your return to the farm with such miscoscopic detail that I am sure, barring a thousandth chance, your father will never find out you have been away from it."

"How is that?" Noel asked quickly, and I outlined the elaborate precautions for outwitting Phillip Veritzen which Dicky had planned.

"Those ought to work," he admitted, and then he voiced the question I had expected.

"How much more time does that give us?" he asked, and his voice held the inflections of a condemned man counting the moments of his reprieve.

"Don't be so dolorous, darling!" Mary said with a comforting pat on his shoulder. No matter how much longer we have here, we'll soon be together again. If I make the grade, according to Auntie Madge's prophecy, it won't be two shakes of a lamb's tail before we'll have a little New York apartment, and be a real, honest-to-God, married couple again."

"God speed the day!" Noel murmured fervently. Then he turned to me again and I answered his query before he had to repeat it.

"We will leave the hotel day after tomorrow," I told him. "We will be all packed and ready for Miss Whitlock's telephone, which will tell us, we hope, that she has received my letter, mailed by Thorp, has shown it to your father, and that he has taken the bait and stared for South Jersey to see for himself if we are there.

"The minute we receive that message," I went on, "we will start for our respective destinations, and I am sure no one will be the wiser that young Mr. and Mrs. Veritzen and Mrs. Graham spent a few days at this little hotel."

"Unless Mary gets her name on Broadway and her photographs in the papers," Noel said slowly. "Then they'll remember her here."

"I doubt it, lamb," his wife said promptly.

"I'm not quite so rigid in my judgment as Mary," I told him, "but I agree with her that there's very little danger of the people here remembering that we have been here, and it wouldn't matter if they did. Hotel people are supposed to be discreet, you know. They do not tell everything they know."

Noel did not smile. "Day after tomorrow!" he mused, as if counting the hours. Mary thrust her arm through his, and looked at me with grateful eyes.

"We'll go and count our rosary," she said tenderly, "and a million thanks to you for making it possible."

"You know I mean that too, don't you, Aunt Madge?" Noel asked boyishly.

"Of course I do," I told him heartily. "I'm only sorry I can't give you all of your time. I suppose,"—I weakened perceptibly—"I could let you off that half hour of drill tonight."

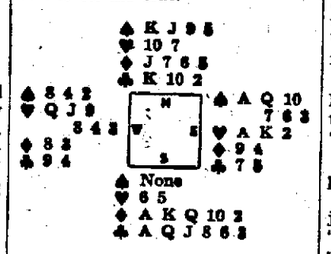
"The Authority on Auther'tics"

GET MORE DISCARDS

When you have a safe fit for either of two suits bid by your partner, it is usually better to favor the one which is more evenly divided between the two hands. Besides contributing more pliability to the problem, enabling your partner the better choice between a cross-ruffing and a suit-establiishing procedure, you give him an opportunity to obtain more discards of losers if the unbalanced suit is on the side.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

Here was a case in which North had his choice between having his partner play with a nine-card trump suit divided on a basis of five cards in one hand and four in the other, and having nine trumps divided on a basis of six and three. North made the wrong choice, though his partner clearly disclosed his distribution.

East opened the bidding with 1-Spade, South overcalled with 2-Clubs, West passed, North made a bad pass when he should have bid 2-No trump. East bid 2-Spades, South 3-Diamonds and North 3-No trump. After East's pass, South called 4-Diamonds, making it clear from the rebid that the suit was of at least five cards, also letting North know that the clubs were a card longer because they had been named first.

On the unsound reasoning that the club suit must be better because it was shown before the diamonds, North went from 4-Diamonds to 5-Clubs. West led the spade 8 in answer to his partner's bid. When the play was over North got a lesson from his partner, who made an overtrick because a heart was discarded from the dummy on the diamonds. South showed him that, with diamonds as trumps, two hearts could have been discarded on the clubs because the suit was more unbalanced than the diamonds.

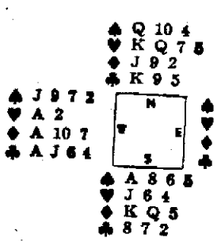
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the spade 2 led against his 2-No trump contract, which was doubled by West, what card should South play from dummy on the first trick, and why?

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I don't know when I ever had such a glorious holiday. I don't expect that anything will ever approach the wonderful combination of friends, guests and occasions that evolved just at the most marvelous time of year. Everyone just hates to go, but it would be a sort of anti-climax if things went on and on.

Of course, all of this would have meant very little had I not reconciled with Bill. Guido and Vittoria, Don and Phylys, Pam and Kenneth—all couples, just as it should be. I could have had Dennis as an escort, but that isn't the same as being with your own beau. When two people are in harmony, in sympathy, even the most commonplace evening becomes touched with magic. You laugh together, you see the fun in things and there is joy and understanding in an exchanged glance or smile. You can devote yourself so eagerly to the other members of a party if you know that your own best-beloved is there, too.

Lonely Years.

I don't ever want to live through lonely years as I did after we quarreled. After all, no one is perfect, we all have faults—loads of them. So one must love despite faults and imperfections, if there is any sympathy or understanding and mutual respect. Of course, if these things are absent, then it is best to part for all time.

Madame and Howard are so happy, too. I think that they both learned a great deal from their quarrel, even as Bill and I did. They also have learned to give and take, to be tolerant of each other but critical of themselves. Madame is devoting less and less time to the business, while Howard is no more so immersed in his technical books. And, strangely enough, although Madame puts in less time at the shop, she is doing a better job, accomplishing more while she is there, thinking more constructively and doing more.

Mind Becomes Stale.

When one spends all the time, from early morning till late at night each and every day, at one place, doing one thing, the mind becomes stale and the brain doesn't function right. When one gets away from a problem it seems so much clearer. Well, Madame has found that out and so she is going to have so much more fun and success out of her life. Believe me, I've found it out. I don't rush back like mad from luncheon, unless, of course, there is an important piece of business waiting. I take my time, go for a stroll, and return all refreshed, ready to tackle the job. I eat light, of course, for one cannot think clearly after a heavy meal. I'm going to do the same thing while I'm south.

Navy linen "little boy" shorts, with a white halter dotted in navy, and a white linen jacket make a nice southern costume. The pockets are attached to the belt.

THEATERS

IT IS difficult to take seriously rumors that there will never be another Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire musical film, because the two have announced that they were through. But this time there seems to be some reason for it. Astaire's contract with RKO has not been renewed, and the dancing for weeks takes such a toll of Miss Rogers' strength that she is determined to put away her dancing shoes for a long time, if not forever. She already has demonstrated that her film career will not suffer if she sticks to romantic comedy without the dances. Their current picture is "The Castles."

Thrills in "Trade Winds."

"Trade Winds," with Fredric March and Joan Bennett, combine a nice blending of gay comedy, romance and not a few thrills. One of the thrills comes when a beautiful girl, wanted for murder and pursued by the police, drives a fast car off the end of an open bridge into the waters of San Francisco Bay. The chase continues to the Orient and ends in a surprising climax. Th picture is shown at the Madison.

How Many Lives?

"Son of Frankenstein," which is a sequel to "Frankenstein," and "Bride of Frankenstein," and which gives the big monster his third lease on life, is a sort of combined "Frankenstein" and "Dracula," for both bogie men, Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi are in it and each with a make up that would scare a ghost. The present story finds Basil Rathbone, as the son of the scientist, struggling with the monster. The Ohio has the "horror" film for the week.

"Tovarich" at Majestic.

The delightful comedy of a Russian Grand Duke and his Duchess who become butler and lady's maid in Paris where they are in exile, comes to the Majestic tomorrow for three days. The story is told in "Tovarich," film version of the successful stage comedy. Charles Boyer and Claudette Colbert are starred with Basil Rathbone and Anita Louise in featured roles. "Big City" with Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy is also booked.

Movies Are Different.

The recent prison break at Alcatraz, federal prison in San Francisco Bay, lends interest to "King of Alcatraz" in which Public Enemy No. 1 makes a break. The only difference being that in the movies they get away with it, while in real life the bad man was shot and killed in the break. The movie bad man escapes and, disguised, makes his way aboard a steamer where he terrorizes the passengers. "Letter of Introduction" with Charlie McCarthy, Edgar Bergen, Andrea Leeds and Adolphe Menjou is also at the Ritz.

"Fighting Thoroughbreds."

A young medical doctor, accidentally summoned as a veterinarian to help an injured thoroughbred colt, takes one look at the pretty owner and decides to sail under false colors in "Fighting Thoroughbred" at the Park. "Vivacious Lady," with Ginger Rogers and James Stewart in a comedy of a bashful college professor and a night club singer, rounds out the bill.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Jan. 24.

The planetary operations for this day point to fairly lively and interesting conditions, as far as business affairs are concerned. However, in the purely personal relations there may be inharmony, conflict or other disagreeable manifestations. Otherwise there is a sign hinting at important new interests, or possibly a contact with a stranger who may have some business proposals to offer which may be worthwhile.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which new interests may prove more lucrative than the old. A stranger may be profitably cultivated in business proposals, but in all purely social or intimate affairs some hesitancy is enjoined. All pertaining to writings should thrive, unless concerned with romantic associations.

A child born on this day will be clever, versatile, original and fond of all sorts of novelties and unusual contacts, in some of which it may be taken in because of its romantic and kindly nature.

Wife Preservers

Dust cloths which are treated with furniture polish can be kept in tin coffee tins with tight lids. They can then be stored with other cleaning equipment without fear of combustion.

Treatment Keeps Lips Pretty

By MME. QUI VIVE

With the lipstick flourishing like a green bay tree it behooves the members of the sisterhood to cultivate pleasing mouth lines. The lips should be soft and of good masculature, which means that they must not be neglected so that they become flabby.

Smiling lips have beauty no matter what they contour may be, whether they are thin or heavy, vivid or pale. They appeal to the heart. They also appeal to the intelligence, since any human being whose brain functions know that good nature is a health factor and that it is contagious.

There's a neat little home treatment that will do a heap toward keeping the mouth and surrounding tissues youthful. Drag out the old massage cream, see what you can do. Oncoming years will bring little up and down crinkles unless they are warded off. Take out your beauty insurance.

Give yourself this treatment after the face washing and before tumbling in between the sheets. As the muscles around the mouth are fine and delicate, the touch must be light and rapid; there must be no dragging down of the tissues. If you haven't a heavy cream a good muscle oil will do.

Keep the lips relaxed, rotate the first finger above and under the lips.

Start at the lip ends and do a light nipping, working toward the center. Don't roll or pinch the flesh, lift it lightly. Begin in the center of the lower lip, work toward the ends. Keep the fingers well creamed while doing this.

Place the first finger in the center of the upper lip, thumb and second finger at either end, draw the lip up into a Cupid's bow. This treatment strengthens the fibers, firms the tissues.

Do a fluting movement. With the thumb and second finger pick up the flesh under and over the lips. Finish with an ice rub.

My Neighbor Says:

Grapefruit facials are now recommended by beauty experts. Mix unstrained fresh grapefruit juice with beaten white of an egg; cover the face and neck. Leave on for five or 10 minutes; remove with tepid water and rinse with cool, clear water. You'll have the clean refreshed feeling which comes from smooth, cool skin.

The number of members of the family usually determine the size of canned foods to be purchased. Although it is often economical to buy the larger containers it is necessary to be sure of proper storage facilities. An eight-ounce can yields one cup; a No. 1 tall can yields two cups; a No. 2 can yields 2½ cups; a No. 2½ holds 3½ cups and a No. 3 holds four cups. The two or 2½—depending on what is being purchased—is the average family size.

HERE IS one of the most novel costumes shown for some time. A charming frock, it can be either sport or dressy, depending on accessories. And it is nice for town or winter resort wear. The blouse part is of black antelope with black knit sleeves. It closes in back with a zipper. The skirt is knit. It can be worn with or without a belt. A jewelled silver necklace dresses it up, while a kerchief in gay colors gives it a sporty look.

Spraying the foliage of ferns on cloudy days sometimes turns the tips of ferns black.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are crom, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and then aids in giving you more pep and happier outlook from female functional disorders.

"Enjoy My Meals First Time In Years and Thank Vendol"

Mansfield housewife says she relishes every bite, knowing there will be no gas, bloating, or sour acid risings afterwards. Advises all sufferers to try Vendol.

MRS. EDMUND FUCHS

"I've been suffering from stomach distress for years and have tried various remedies seeking relief, but Vendol has done more good than any of them," said Mrs. Edmund Fuchs, well known local housewife living at 24 Bentley St., to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store recently.

"Constipation can be charged with all my troubles, for the accumulated wastes in my digestive tract upset my digestion so that I couldn't eat a meal without knowing that the food would lay heavy in my stomach, ferment and form distressing gas, sending pains and cramps through my abdomen. This gas often made me feel full and bloated, and the sour, acid risings would come up in my throat.

"This upset stomach distress caused headaches that would last for days, and frequent bilious attacks, with a coated tongue, and bad taste in my mouth. Seemed I could never get a night of restful sleep and usually arose every morning feeling tired, with an aching in all my muscles.

"I hadn't taken Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets a week before I knew that at last I had found the medicine that would really do the work and do it in a hurry. It acted so easily, yet thoroughly, to relieve my constipation, and then all my other troubles began to fade away. Soon I was really enjoying my meals for the first time in years, and could eat things I had denied myself before, yet never have a sign of indigestion, gas, or bloating. Headaches and bilious attacks don't bother me any more, have a clean taste in my mouth, and sleep the night through, getting up in the mornings feeling rested and refreshed. I want to recommend Vendol to all my friends, for it has certainly shown its worth to me."

Make up your mind now to begin enjoying better health. Visit the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., and let him courteously explain all about this splendid Root, Herb and Alkaline medicine and direct you how to take it to get the utmost benefits. See him today if possible.

Mansfield's Victims In District Tournament Expected to Make Murphymen Step This Week.

MEMORIES of disastrous defeats in last season's district tournament may prove fatal for Mr. Russ Murphy's men of the court on the Mansfield high school hardwood this week.

Perhaps you remember that Mansfield's hoop crew entered the district eliminations at Sandusky last year without any bugles heralding their championship hopes.

Mansfield was rated in the pre-season dope as just another ball club, which, with a break or two, might get by the first game. Bellevue and Sandusky were the title choices.

Tygers Did Well.

Well, it so happened that the underrated Tygers not only whipped the two tournament favorites, but won the district championship much to the chagrin of Bellevue and Sandusky followers.

This week Mansfield renews rivalries with these two clubs, and to say that Bellevue and Sandusky are out to avenge the tournament defeats is putting it mildly.

Murphy's Tygers have a tough job cut out for them this week as these two quintets are again romping over the hardwoods in spectacular fashion.

Manfield's first assignment is with Bellville, which comes to the Tygers' plant Tuesday night. Sandusky invades Mansfield Saturday. Here are two all-star attractions that should pack the Mansfield athletic plant.

The Tygers bowed to the undefeated New Philadelphia quintet Friday night, but held their own, despite a two-point defeat. Had the Tygers shown any marksmanship on the foul line, they would have taken the Quakers into camp.

Tyger Matmen Break Into Win Column

Take Six Bouts to Defeat Columbus East.

Coach F. B. Million's grapplers of Mansfield high school registered their first victory in three starts Saturday when they defeated Columbus East, 28 to 11, in a dual meet.

The Tyger matmen won six of the nine matches, with one of the wins coming on a forfeit. Perrine, McDonough, Young and Sorg gave Mansfield four matches by falls, with Jack Swartz winning the other on a decision.

Outside of the decision matches, the longest bout was staked by McDonough and Boice with the former winning in six minutes, 47 seconds. Staker, of Columbus, tossed Tamberino in 30 seconds in the shortest match. The summary:

105-pound Division—Perrine, Mansfield, threw Smallsreed, East, in overtime, 1-50
115—McDonough, Mansfield, threw Boice, East, 6-47.
125—Grossman, East, won referee's decision over Phaler, Mansfield.
135—Staker, East pinned Tamberina, Mansfield, 30 seconds.
145—Young, Mansfield, threw Moore, East, 4-38.
155—Sorg, Mansfield, pinned Thomas, East, 2 36
165—Soomsky, East, defeated F. Schwartz, Mansfield, decision.
Heavyweight—J. Swartz Mansfield, won over Marx, East, decision.

Union Wins, Shelby Loses

Indians Take Lexington Into Camp, 36 to 29.

Building up a good-sized lead in the first half, Union Rural high cagemen trimmed Lexington, 36 to 29, in a Richland county league game on the winners' hardwood Saturday.

Union held a 11 to 3 lead at the end of the first period and 20 to 11 at the half. The Indians were in front by a 33 to 16 count going into the final quarter.

Coach Hunter's men were limited to only three points in the final quarter, while the Minutemen hung up 13.

Swisher, with 14 points, and Craviing, with 10, led the Unionites France tallied 11 for the losers.

The Union reserves trimmed the Lexington seconds, 21 to 15, in the prelim game

Week of April 20 Set for Mittfest

The second annual Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. boxing tournament will be staged during the week of April 20, it was announced today by James Huffman, chairman of the J. A. C. boxing committee.

Amateur leather pushers from Mansfield and neighboring cities are expected to swell the list of entries over last year's successful show. The tourney will be staged on successive nights.

In addition to their inability to sink their foul shots, the Tygers were handicapped on the offense by the tiny New Philly floor.

The Mansfield-Bellevue game is only one of four on schedule in this vicinity Tuesday night. Madison, which is sporting a seven-game winning streak in the county league, is host to Bellville, while Butler makes a non-league appearance at Perrysville. Crestline entertains Cardington.

Tuesday's games will provide the action on high school courts in this vicinity until Friday when virtually all the clubs are scheduled Mansfield is one of the few county quintets not scheduled Friday.

In the county league Friday. Lucas performs at Union. Bellville plays at Butler and Lexington invades Ontario. N. C. O conference tilts send Shelby to Ashland and Mt. Vernon to Galion.

Tigers at Bucyrus.

Plymouth, beaten in its last two games, play at Bucyrus Friday, while Shiloh invades North Fairfield, victorious over the Tigers last week. Crestline plays Fostoria St. Wendelin in a League of Six Nations program at Marion Friday.

In addition to the Mansfield-Sandusky tussle, Saturday's games includes meetings between Loudonville and Madison, Ontario and Iberia, Greenwich and Plymouth and Delaware and Mt Vernon.

Head Church 'B' League Program

Headlining Tuesday night's Class B Church league games at the Y. M. C. A will be a tussle between the First Christian and St John quintets

The Christians are tied for first place with Park Avenue Baptist, while the St John five is only a half game behind. They will meet in the third game at 8 45 p. m.

The Baptists engage the Lutherans in the second game, while the First Presbyterian and First M E tangle in the opener at 6 45 Central M. E faces South Main in the final game at 9 45

BUDGE GAINS 10-4 EDGE OVER VINES IN NET TOUR

WASHINGTON D C —(INS)— Don Budge and Ellsworth Vines hook up here tonight in the 15th combat of their transcontinental pro tennis championship tour, with Budge holding a 10 to 4 lead on the 14 matches thus far played

Budge ran his string of victories to six straight in Baltimore Saturday night when he took a sadly off-form Vines into camp, 6-2 and 6-1 Vines said he'd been suffering from an upset stomach, but is over that now, and he promised to start catching up with the California red head tonight.

ARMSTRONG TO OPEN TOUR IN AKRON RING

AKRON —(AP)— Henry Armstrong, double title-holder of the lightweight and welterweigh boxing divisions, is scheduled to open an exhibition trip here tonight which will include nearly 30 eastern cities.

DICK METZ WINS 'FRISCO, BEATS SMITH IN FINALS

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Smiling Dick Metz, reigning star of the current winter tournament season, pocketed $1,000, another title and headed for greener golfing pastures today.

The Chicago professional won the $5,000 San Francisco match play open yesterday with a one up victory over Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill. The match went the full route of 36 holes.

Louis Finds Lewis Is a Knocker-Outer, Too, But Joseph Can't Scare Up Any Worriment

By DILLON GRAHAM

POMPTON LAKES, N. J.—(AP) —Joseph Louis Barrow is not an assiduous reader, even of boxing records, so he was a bit surprised when told that John Henry Lewis, his vis-a-vis in Madison Square Garden Wednesday had never been knocked out.

"You don't say!" exclaimed the tan bomber.

Being of an obliging nature, Joseph quickly promised to entertain John Henry with a shuteye party—J. H. to slumber in a horizontal position while Joe lounged lazily on the ropes and listened to the referee's tolling.

Ready For Distance.

After a month's training in this Jersey retreat, the heavyweight champion declared himself in shape. The chart would say he will be prepared for a 15-round encounter but Joseph is habitually opposed to such overtime labor and confidently expects to be gnawing on a fried-chicken leg an hour after the starting gong.

The Barrow boy is downright fond of fried chicken.

There is no air of apprehension hovering over the camp but the Louis entourage is aware that John Henry rates as one of the best men Joseph has met.

If he's been kayoed John Henry has carefully concealed it from the record books. Moreover, and contrary to general belief, J. H. carries a punch in either fist. True, he doesn't carry the right-hand wallop packed by Max Schmeling or Max Baer but he's a better two-handed fighter than either. He probably hits as hard as anyone else Joe has met.

Knocker-Outer.

John Henry has hung up 48 knockouts over the last seven years. And quite a portion of these came in the last two seasons, against heavyweights. Although scaling down to the light-heavyweight limit for title matches, Lewis has done most of his recent campaigning amongst the heavies.

Maxie Rosenbloom has been Lewis's nemesis. He has lost only seven fights and three of these were to Maxie. He beat Maxie once, and also won and lost to James J. Braddock. He's won 39 decisions.

Not only is he more experienced than Louis over the full route of their pugilistic careers but he has fought 28 rounds (and trained hard for the Galento scrap that was called off when Tony was felled by pneumonia) since the last time Joe laced on a glove.

It has been shown before that Joe must fight often to be at his best, so it is worthy of note that Joe's layoff since beating Schmeling last June is the longest of his brief career.

Waltz Out, Joe Says.

It has long been a saying that when two colored boys meet they forsake their usual fox-trot tactics for the more leisurely waltz. But Joseph has no truck with this. He says he'll endeavor to take Lewis to the cleaners as promptly as possible.

Whatever the result Louis knows the John Henry engagement doesn't shape up in the same category as his winter warmups last year against Natie Mann and Harry Thomas.

But it takes a mighty heap of danger to worry the calm Mr. Louis.

Seek 14th Straight Victory

A PAIR of interesting contests are on tap for followers of the City Class A basketball league at Senior high tonight.

The games toss together the undefeated Yuncker Sports and Elks Lodge quintets and the Westinghouse Electric and Earl Herrick's Hi-Speeds.

Play Last Game.

Manager Jimmy Breres' high-scoring outfit will be after its 14th straight City league triumph against the Elks in the feature tilt at 8:30 o'clock.

The Electrics, who share first place with the Sports in the second round race, hope to topple the Hi-Speeds in an effort to cling onto their share of the lead.

In the Elks, the Sportsmen face practically a new team. With the exception of Tom Farrell and Jack Miner, who started the season with the Lodgemen, the club has been rebuilt Two former Ashland high stars Franklin Zercher, a forward and Ray Harmon, a guard, made their debut last week, and Pilot Jerry King expects to have two more newcomers in the lineup tonight, although it is not definitely known who they will be.

Elks Strengthened.

With the revamped team, the Elks, hope to stage the major upset of the season. The Yuncker machine waded through the first round with ease, and last week, in opening games of the second round, chalked up their largest score of the season.

State's Games Top Schedule

Bucks Face Michigan, Chicago This Week.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Mid-year examinations put a crimp in Ohio college basketball activities this week, only 12 games being on the Monday-through-Friday slate, and another dozen Saturday night, but what the program lacks in quantity it makes up in quality.

Topping the list are two western conference frays, with Ohio State meeting Michigan tonight and Chicago Saturday at Columbus.

Other No. 1 attractions include Toledo's appearance in Madison Square Garden Friday against Long Island; Notre Dame's invasion of John Carroll tonight at Cleveland, and Akron's pair of tilts against Findlay and Waynesburg to determine whether the Zippers remain as the state's only unbeaten quintet.

This week's games:

Monday Michigan at Ohio State, Notre Dame at John Carroll.

Friday: Akron at Waynesburg, Toledo at Long Island, West Liberty at Chiropodists.

Moose No. 2 Upsets 2972 Pins In Win

Only One Member Below 600 In Series With Orrville.

With every member but one contributing a 600; the Moose No. 2 team knocked down 2972 pins in a Moose Traveling league match with Orrville to win scoring honors at the Meder alleys over the week-end.

Ray Shively rolled a 629. Pete Grohol shot a 622, Eddie Meder came through with a 618 and Don Renner contributed a 603 as the lodgemen registered scores of 979, 992 and 1001 for three wins.

Phillipon Rolls 650.

Led by Carl Phillipon's 233-245-172—650 and Orin Grable's 619, the Lumberens Insurance pinsters accounted for the second high series. 2969, which was divided into games of 1050, 1007 and 912. The string was good for a special match victory over Ringer's Cafe of Mt. Vernon. led by Dale Porter's 648, featured by a 254.

Finishing with a 1032, the Moose No. 1 team hung up a 2922 total as it took three decisions from the Green Rivers of Lorain in an N. C. O. Traveling league match. Art Hilborn, 606, and Farrell Hipp, 603, were high for the Moose.

The Mansfield Printers, paced by Flood's 622, defeated Ashland in a special match, 2645 to 2526, and Mary McMullen shot a 498 as she led the Mansfield women's team to victory over the Miller Products of Shelby, 2129 to 2068. The Order Service won two games from Range Assembly No. 1 in a postponed Westinghouse league match.

Big Doubles Score.

Grable and Phillipon accounted for one of the highest doubles totals of the season when they wrapped up 1318 sticks to defeat Porter and Carl Lamson of Mt. Vernon, who collected 1160 pins. Grable shot a 661, with a 267 high, and Phillipon added a 637. Hipp, with 629, and Hilborn of the Moose team defeated Yukas and Andorka, 625, by a 1183 to 1158 margin in another doubles match.

St. Paul, Main Remain In Tie

Win Class C Church League Games at Y. M. C. A.

South Main cagers put on a slick defensive show in the Class C Church league at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday when they held First Presbyterian scoreless for the last three periods in their 22 to 3 victory.

The victory enabled South Main to remain in a tie for first place with St. Paul Evangelical, which won over Episcopal, 24 to 19. First M. E. stayed within striking distance of the van by tripping the Boy Rangers, 20 to 11. St. John courtmen won over Park Avenue Baptist, 24 to 11, in the other game.

BARONS WHIP HERSHEY, CLIMB NEARER LEAD

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The Cleveland Barons today were within one point of first place in the western division of the International-American Hockey league after whipping the Hershey Bears 1 to 0 at the Cleveland Arena.

The Barons went ahead in a hurry. Lorne Duguid scoring on an assist from Ossie Asmundsen at 1:24 of the first period. From then until the end of the game, it was a hard job for Baron goalies Moe Roberts to keep Cleveland out in front.

Rifle Club Loses To Upper Sandusky

ATTRIBUTE DIP TO REVIVAL OF EUROPEAN FEAR

Trading Forces Seek Safety in Lightening Commitments; Foreign Marts Heavy.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Persistent selling hit the stock market today and dropped leading issues fractions to 2 points. There were a few relapses of as much as 5.

Large blocks came out at the opening and, for a while, the ticker tape moved rapidly. Offerings dwindled later, however, although rallying tendencies failed to appear.

Brokers attributed the extension of Saturday's retreat to revival of fears over the European situation. With the Spanish war reaching a crisis, and the German financial picture cloudier than ever, most speculative forces sought safety in lightening commitments.

Prominent on the losing side were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Douglas Aircraft, DuPont and Consolidated Edison. Foreign securities markets were heavy.

IMITATE BEST, SENIORS URGED

causes. 4. The persistent staying in the presence of great personalities, and 5. The persistent staying in the presence of the one great person.

Amplifying his views on the first thought, he added: "If we are imitators, then life's secret is the presistent staying in the presence of the best, imitating the best. We cannot think mediocre thoughts and life great lives. It is impossible for us to expect that we can deliberately choose darkness rather than light and then expect life to reflect light rather than darkness."

Rev. Roller then told the seniors that the great secret of all living is the persistent staying in the presence of great truths.

"It has been the constant application of the great truths of science that man has built up a marvelous civilization, and it is by the constant disregard of the great truths of religion that man is tearing down the civilization he has made," he said.

Presence of Great Causes.

"The great secret of living is the persistent staying in the presence of the great causes. Those who have accomplished the really great things have been the ones who have identified their lives with great causes. They were great because they were swept off their feet by great causes and lifted head and shoulders above their fellows. No one can live greatly without living under the inspiration and glow of great causes."

Speaking of the fourth great secret of living, staying in the presence of great personalities, he said: "Life becomes interesting only when it is spent in the presence of great personalities. Great literature is of timeless value. We cannot allow the unworthy to fill our minds with abnormal passions and the subnormal dirt of this neurotic age. Life becomes worthwhile only when inspired by the presence of great personalities."

"The fifth and last great secret of all living is the persistent staying in the presence of one great person," he said. "In our day we are witnessing a strange anomaly. We all can see that the trend of government over the earth has gone the wrong way. Great nations are in the hands of directors who force their will upon the people like the feudal lords of centuries ago. If they want to go back its all right, but if we are going back into the past let us choose the best one of the past to follow. Let us follow the one great person, the same yesterday, today, and forever."

Concluding, Rev. Roller added that the hope of America lies in the next generation, "and only in the next generation if it discovers the secret of the great living."

The service opened with the graduating class marching into the auditorium attired in their caps and gowns. The senior choir, directed by Mrs. C. O. Anglin sang two anthems, "The Beautitudes" by Jennings, and "Holy Art Thou" by Handel. Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, organist, played "Finlandia" by Sibelellius for the prelude.

GREYHOUND

10 RESCUED AT SEA NEAR N. Y.

a New York auction company, and Robert Spence, one of the Cavalier's two stewards.

Those rescued:

Passengers — Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Noakes; Mrs. George Ingham, Mrs. Edna Watson of Bermuda and Miss Nellie Tucker Smith, Bermuda, and Charles Talbot of Brookline, Mass.

Crew—Capt. M. R. Alderson; Neil Richardson, first officer, Patrick Chapman, radio officer, and David Williams, the other steward.

The plane flashed an "S.O.S." but reported it was "okay" after landing on the storm-tossed waves at 1:12 p. m. Then, within 10 minutes, came the one-word message — "Sinking" — followed by tragic silence.

Mrs. Noakes, who never before had been up in a plane, told rescuers of watching her exhausted husband struggle futilely.

"I saw him and he looked very weak; he let go the life belt soon after we fell into the water," she said. "I called to him to hold on but he let go and I did not see him again. It was horrible."

One Arm Crippled.

Most heroic struggle of any was that made by Talbot, a former Harvard athlete flying to Bermuda to recuperate from a skiing accident. Although one arm was in a cast, he clung to a lifebelt through five hours of daylight and five of darknèss until help arrived.

Commander Raymond T. McElligott of the coast guard cutter Champlain said the 13 persons had to take to the water without warning.

Seamen regarded it as a miracle that the Baytown, with no clue to the survivors' whereabouts except the reports the plane gave of its position before landing, had heard the cries of the survivors above the storm. The small bobbing figures were hidden by the night.

Captain Frank H. Spurr of the Baytown in a routine report chronicled the heroism of his crew in braving the dangerous seas in a lifeboat to pick up—one by one—the dripping survivors.

"While proceeding to one of the positions given by radio of lost plane at 10:30 p. m., voices of survivors were heard calling," he radioed.

"No. 1 lifeboat, in charge of Chief Officer O. Anderson, found survivors floating in rubber life belts and took them into life boat, bringing them alongside where they were safely taken on board."

er pupils than the state department of education permits, was ordered closed last year, but a year's stay was granted later to enable the board to work out a consolidation program.

The county board's proposal calls for a high school to serve Weller and Franklin townships (Union district) and Butler and Bloominggrove townships. A building near the center of the district would house all high school and grade pupils in the northern half of the area. The present Union rural high school in Weller township would be used as a grade building.

Because of the time used in conferring on the plan Saturday, scheduled election of officers of the county school board was postponed until a later meeting.

New IN MANSFIELD
Colonial Plan
PERSONAL LOANS—$25 TO $1,000
EASY TO BORROW—EASY TO PAY

A new service in Mansfield, but old in seven states. COLONIAL PLAN loans are now available to anyone who is regularly employed. COLONIAL PLAN loans have many advantages.

Borrow on Colonial Plan to Get Out of Debt

Many people do it every day. They come to Colonial and get the cash to pay worrisome bills, thus reducing their debts to one obligation, with only one small monthly payment instead of several.

Here your car (even if not fully paid for) or other personal security—and signature—is all you need for a COLONIAL PLAN loan.

Refinance Your Car Reduce Your Monthly Payments

If you are buying a car on payments and your monthly instalments are proving too large, COLONIAL PLAN offers a refinancing service that will reduce your payments as much as one-third or one-half and provide cash in addition if desired.

LESS COST—Reduced Rates: Cost on amounts over $100 up to $300 is one-third less. Amounts over $300 cost only 8% per annum.

ADDITIONAL SAVINGS—10% of the cost is refunded in cash if monthly payment is made promptly.

OTHER COLONIAL ADVANTAGES

1. Speed Loans You can get the money in one hour—and shorter time if necessary.
2. More Money Loans $25 to $1,000. Our advances are liberal.
3. Thrift Loans Remember, COLONIAL PLAN helps you out of DEBT in shorter time—with less cost to you.
4. Low Payments Repay as little as $4.00 monthly for each $100 borrowed, and more if you can.
5. Easy Terms First payment will not be due for 45 days and then small monthly payments to suit your convenience.

GERMANY—SIX YEARS UNDER HITLER RULE

Chancellor Nears Anniversary With Vast Changes in Nation Behind Him.

(Editor's Note: Adolf Hitler came into power in Germany six years ago next Monday. Since that date—Jan. 30, 1933—Germany has gone through an unprecedented change—a change that has profoundly affected world affairs and that is still incomplete. Following is the first of several dispatches by members of the Berlin staff of the United Press explaining what has happened in Germany.)

By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN—Nazi Germany will be six years old next Monday and, if you were a German returning home for the first time since 1933, you might fail to recognize the fatherland.

Opponents of the Nazi regime at home and abroad emphasize many unfavorable developments as a discredit to the new Germany or as illustrating weaknesses of the reich. Nazi leaders recite an impressive list of achievements.

But, in any event, there have been profound changes throughout the nation in the last six years and still greater changes may come in 1939.

Language Change.

Since Fuehrer Adolf Hitler came into power, strange new words and terms have crept into the German language to express the ideas and functions of the Nazi regime. On the new maps there are names of cities and mountains, lakes and rivers and forests, that never were on a German map before.

The population of Germany has been boosted from 65,000,000 to 80,000,000. The area of the country has increased from 181,000 square miles to 225,000 square miles by expansion of the frontiers to include Austria and the Sudetenland.

There is a skilled labor shortage instead of the 6,000,000 unemployed of 1933. Working hours have been increased in some industries although paradoxically probably a million men are still jobless because of seasonal and other factors.

Factory chimneys that were smokeless six years ago now spout black plumes for 24 hours every day. All plants in the reich are geared to a Nazi production boom despite shortage of essential raw materials and financing difficulties. The army has expanded and roads web the country.

Greater Germany is on the march to the tune of Nazi piping. The Nazi press emphasizes that it is a forward march regardless of the fact that there are frequent shortages of such things as butter and coffee and that substitute materials are widely used.

Once Smiled Upon.

One way of expressing what has happened in Germany is to say that the theories of a political leader who evoked smiles a decade ago have now become realities.

Hitler has made a religion of dynamism on the theory that a nation that remains static must die. As the seventh year of Nazism begins, he has probably greater absolute power than any other man in Germany history.

There is another side to the picture. It shows the price Germany has paid not only in many billions of dollars spent but in less material terms such as loss of individual rights, racial intolerance, drastic suppression of political opposition, strict control of the press.

Nazism has pursued an official anti-Semitic policy designed to bring about the economic ruin of 600,000 Jews and cause them to migrate from Germany.

Nazism has brought the Protestant church under party control and deprived the Catholic church of all except purely religious functions

Nazism has molded the newspapers and magazines and radio—every method of influencing public opinion—into a single instrument for promoting the objectives of the state.

Nazism has ended all political opposition and suppressed all other political organizations, throwing many of their leaders into concentration camps.

Nazism has more than doubled taxes, yet also more than doubled the official public debt which is now officially put at $10,000,000,000 but is privately estimated at about two or three times that figure.

One reason that a definite line cannot be drawn in regard to Hitler's public support is that millions of Germans resent his church policy, for example, but approve of other phases of his program.

GASCO 1939 FOOD INSTITUTE

THE 1939 edition of the Gasco Food Institute will be presented before Mansfield home-makers during three big days beginning tomorrow. Through the co-operation of enterprising Mansfield merchants, The News-Journal and The Gas Company this outstanding cooking event has been made possible for the third consecutive year.

An entirely new program is offered this year during the three sessions. A beautiful new model all-gas kitchen supplies the stage setting for all demonstrations. An experienced food lecturer is again in charge, ably assisted by the local home service representative of The Gas Company. An Institute Manager is responsible for all arrangements and details.

We believe you'll find this year's programs more interesting and more instructive than ever. They are filled with dramatic surprises. If you've attended the Gasco Food Institute in previous seasons, you know something of what is in store for you. In any event, be sure to attend this year. Remember the time—9:00 o'clock each morning, tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday. Admission is free to all.

Roosevelt Urges $850,000,000 U. S. Health Program

10-YEAR PLAN RECOMMENDED TO LAWMAKERS

Social Insurance Included in Message; Wagner Set to Introduce Measure.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt submitted to congress for "careful study" today a comprehensive report recommending a long-range $850,000,000 federal-state program to improve the nation's health.

"The objective of a national health program," Mr. Roosevelt said, "is to make available in all parts of our country and for all groups of our people the scientific knowledge and skill at our command to prevent and care for sickness and disability; to safeguard mothers, infants and children; and to offset through social insurance the loss of earnings among workers who are temporarily or permanently disabled."

The report, prepared by an inter-departmental committee named in 1935, included a proposal for compulsory health insurance, which is opposed by the American Medical association as a step toward socialized medicine.

Mr. Roosevelt said one of the objectives of a national health program was to "offset through social insurance the loss of earnings among workers who are temporarily or permanently disabled."

Will Introduce Bill.

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.) has said he would introduce a bill to provide the first $50,000,000 to start the health program, which by 1949 would cost the federal government and the states $850,000,000.

The inter-departmental committee outlined a five-point program which, besides healthy insurance, called for:

Care of the medically indigent.

New hospitals where needed or subsidization of existing hospitals.

Diagnostic and treatment centers.

The American Medical association has approved these last four points, but contends every nation which has tried compulsory health insurance has experienced a lowering of the quality of its medical care.

"The committee does not propose a great expansion of federal health services," Mr. Roosevelt said. "It recommends that plans must be worked out and administered by states and localities with the assistance of federal grants-in-aid. The aim is a flexible program. The committee points out that while the eventual costs of the proposed program would be considerable, they represent a sound investment which can be expected to wipe out, in the long run, certain costs now borne in the form of relief.

READY TO REJECT ROAD PROPOSAL

Commissioners Hold Hearing But Property Owners Don't Appear.

County commissioners today planned to dismiss a proposal for improvement of the Hanley road in Washington township after a hearing at the courthouse failed to attract any property owners in the region served by the road.

Set up as an $8,000 project, the plan would provide for the reconstruction of six-tenths of a mile of the road over a hill and the removal of 10 feet of the road's slope, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said.

Cost of the project would be paid jointly by the county and property holders in the vicinity of the improvement.

LONE INJURY IN COUNTY TRAFFIC

Clevelander Hurt When Car Rolls Over on Route 42; Nine Die in State

One person was slightly injured in the lone traffic accident reported in Richland county over the week-end.

He is William Southam of Cleveland who is in the General hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations sustained when his automobile left the road and turned over at 7:30 p. m. yesterday on a curve at the top of "Ashland hill" on Route 42, northeast of the city, State Highway patrolmen said.

Hospital attendants reported his condition good and said he would probably be released today.

Elsewhere in Ohio however, at least nine persons met death in accidents over the week-end.

Four pedestrians, struck by automobiles, were included among the fatalities. They were: Mrs. Louisa Rentschler, 62, at Cincinnati; Frank Suchodoloski, 60, at Cleveland; Andrew Boggs, 78, at Cincinnati, and Sidney Dick, 60, at Springfield.

At Columbus, William Hammond, 15, was fatally injured when he was knocked from a truck loaded with bailed hay when it went under a bridge.

Mrs. Jesse Pyper, 46, and her son, Robert, 23, Pennsylvanians, were killed neared Steubenville when their auto skidded into a trailer.

Raymond Lentz, 30, was thrown from his skidding automobile and killed at Cleveland. Joseph Callan, 36, of Youngstown, died at Ravenna of injuries received in an automobile accident.

FOUR GO FREE

County Jail Releases to Cut 'Population' to 28.

Competing their terms, four prisoners in the county jail will be released today and Tuesday, reducing the jail population to 28.

Scheduled for release today are James Loveland, 22, and Floyd Kiley, 24, both of Mansfield, who served out 15-day sentences and $8 in costs on convictions for petit larceny.

Leaving the jail tomorrow will be Neal Duffey, 33, Mt. Gilead, and Richard Waldo, 53, New Castle, Pa., who are serving 30-day sentences for assault and battery.

Kiley, who is on probation from common pleas court, will be released to Harry Crouse, county probation officer.

FATHER, 44, HELD

Faces Grand Jury After Denying Failure to Support Child.

Accused of failure to provide for his infant daughter, Joseph C. Gray, 44, Cleveland, pleaded innocent when arraigned in municipal court this morning and was held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

Gray was brought to Mansfield yesterday from Cleveland by Deputy Sheriff C. C. Gongwer on a non-support warrant signed by Gray's wife. Gray is in the county jail.

TRAFFIC TAGS BEGIN TO FLY

relentless march on what was termed in the past by Bates as "flagrant violations" of the parking code.

This flurry may or may not have been responsible, but downtown streets were found to have more and frequent parking spaces this morning. It might have been the weather that caused some persons to leave their machines home as the mercury dropped to near zero.

No check was available on the number of traffic tickets issued in the past three days and collections showed no marked increase due to the Wednesday deadline allowed for payment.

Meanwhile the new "cycle patrol" with Patrolmen C. W. Kyler and Howard Schuck, armed with chalk and traffic tags, began what is to be a daily routine check for traffic violations throughout the city.

They were attired in ear muffs, leather jackets and heavy gloves and boots as they began their eight-hour vigil on Mansfield thoroughfares.

To create the patrol, Bates moved Officer Russell Miles from the second to the first shift, to bolster the strength of the daylight force to 12 officers.

This, the chief explained resulted in shelving one of the cruisers.

MOFFETT TO TAKE OVER JOB AUG. 1

Richland School Official Named to Head Ashland County System.

Chosen from eight applicants Saturday by the Ashland county board of education, V. B. Moffett, superintendent of the Union rural schools north of Mansfield, will assume his post as Ashland county superintendent Aug. 1.

The Union rural board will name Moffett's successor next May.

Moffett, who has headed the Union rural schools for the past three years, will succeed O. H. Maffet, who will retire as Ashland county superintendent after 16 years as head of the county schools.

MEET TO SET UP ORGANIZATION TO ADMINISTER PARALYSIS FUNDS

First steps to set up a permanent organization in Mansfield to administer funds raised for local use through the annual president's ball will be taken this week when members of the 1939 committee call a meeting of former dance chairmen, instructors at the Sunshine school for crippled children, and officials of the Rotary club.

While an accurate check of funds received from the president's ball Saturday night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel had not been made today, Mrs. Louise Reese, chairman of the ticket committee, said that when all of the money is collected there probably would be a net fund of $200, one half of which will remain in Mansfield and the remainder going to the national foundation. The fund is used for infantile paralysis victims.

Mrs. Reece said 170 couples attended the dance, while many who purchased tickets did not attend.

Bob Richard and his Westinghouse orchestra played for the dance and a floor show was presented during the evening.

This week the dance committee will concentrate its activities on the "March of Dimes" which will go directly for research work in infantile paralysis.

Birthday cards, with places for 10 dimes, and bearing a birthday greeting to the president, are being distributed over the city today and containers to receive dimes will be placed in business places.

All of the funds received through the "March of Dimes" will go to the national work for crippled children.

SHIFT MEETINGS

Schedules for Girl Reserve meetings this week, which are being re-arranged to meet changes in school classes, were announced today at the Y.W.C.A.

John Simpson Girl Reserves will meet Tuesday; 8-A class at 9:45, a part of 7th grade at 10:45 a. m., and the remainder at 2 p. m., 9-B and 8-B groups also meet at 2 p. m.

Wednesday the Y. W. will be taken over by Hedges Girl Reserves; the 7th and 8th grade girls meeting at 2 p. m.; and the 9th grade at 4:15.

Two adults Bible classes are scheduled for Tuesday, one at 2:30 and one at 7:30, both under the instructions of Miss Elizabeth McBride.

BACKS HOSPITAL WARD INCREASE

ward is not taxed to capacity, and rooms in the maternity ward cannot be used for any other type of patient. There are 18 mothers and 18 babies in the ward today.

Dr. Fonkalsrud said he would submit a plan at the annual meeting Friday that would make more ward space available.

This calls for converting a section of the first floor of the new building, at the west side, now being used for storage purposes. He estimated that room could be provided for from 14 to 16 patients in the available space. He will also ask the board to approve the inclosing of a first floor porch on the east side of the building for an additional five beds.

RITES TUESDAY

W. F. Sickmiller, 70, to Be Buried in Native Galion.

Funeral services for William F. Sickmiller, 70, of 157 Western avenue, who died at his home early Sunday after an illness of several years, will be held at the Finefrock funeral home at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday with Rev. Herbert S. Garnes, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the Galion cemetery. The body is at the funeral home.

Mr. Sickmiller was born in Galion, Aug. 11, 1868, and came to Mansfield 32 years ago. He operated a grocery store until 15 years ago when he entered the insurance business. Ill health forced his retirement five years ago.

Surviving are his wife, Clara; a son, Walter of Mansfield; a daughter, Mrs. Minnie Cave of Santa Fe, New Mexico, and a brother, Albert of Galion. He was a member of the St. Luke's Lutheran church.

ONE-MAN DRIVE IRKS AUTOISTS

Morrow Constable Says He'll Continue Junction Arrests Despite Protests.

A Morrow county constable was waging a one-man enforcement campaign at a dangerous route junction, ignoring reported protests of Mt. Gilead residents.

The constable is Allen Ireland, of Gilead township, and his enforcement drive has centered at the junction of U. S. Route 42 and State Route 61, south of Mt. Gilead.

Northbound traffic coming off 61 onto 42 is regulated by a "stop" sign, and Ireland's victims have been motorists who have failed, he claims, to make the required stop.

Ireland made six arrests Friday and one Saturday. Of the seven arrested, six pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs, a total of $12.55, by Mayor J. P. Bennett. One driver, R. C. Garretson of Ashland, pleaded not guilty. His case has been continued.

Sheriff Oscar George of Morrow county, told The News-Journal he had protested to Ireland that his activities constituted something of a "trap" but Ireland said he was within his rights in arresting drivers for violations of the law and said he would continue to make arrests. He said state highway patrolmen had frequently made arrests at the same junction point, pointing out that drivers who came out onto 42 from 61 without stopping constituted a driving hazard.

Sheriff George reported he had received 42 telephone calls from Mt. Gilead citizens protesting Ireland's activities. He said the protests were based on the claim that Ireland was making so many arrests because he received $1.65 of the costs in each conviction.

Ireland denied that he was making arrests for his personal profit, and said he would continue to make traffic arrests wherever he found violations.

Among the seven arrested at the 42-61 junction was one Mansfield woman who gave the name of Esther Bowers.

Garretson, who denied failing to observe the stop sign, said he had no way of identifying Ireland as an officer, and was reported to have told the court he feared Ireland might have been a hold-up man. Garretson was returning from Columbus to Ashland with his elderly parents in his car.

Ireland said he had stopped Garretson in the well-lighted part of Mt. Gilead, after chasing him from the intersection.

Garretson furnished bond and hearing was scheduled for Thursday.

1 SLAIN, 1 HURT IN UNDERWORLD SHOOTING CASE

Former Bodyguard of Numbers Racket Chief in Wheeling Killed in Gunfire.

(By United Press)

WHEELING, W. Va.—One man was dead and another critically wounded today in what police described as a gangland shooting.

The slain man was Tom (Patsy) Bonovitch, 55, once a bodyguard for William (Big Bill) Lias, former Wheeling numbers baron.

Nick Miller, 32, said to be a former Lias chauffeur, was in a hospital, wounded in the right shoulder and chest.

Shot six times through the neck and body, his skull fractured from a blow to the head with a blunt instrument, Bonovitch was found lying in an alley near a restaurant where the shooting occurred last night.

How Bonovitch was slain was a mystery. Miller and others who were in the restaurant at the time were unable to shed any light on the killing.

Starts Firing Gun.

According to police, Miller was sitting in the coffee shop talking with Nick Cocco and Charles Kupsak when Bonovitch entered, apparently drunk. After ordering a cup of coffee, he walked around the room several times, it was said, and then suddenly drew a .38 calibre revolver from a coat pocket and started firing at Miller.

Two of the shots went wild, but the third struck Miller in the shoulder and coursed downward through the chest. Miller and the others overpowered and disarmed Bonovitch, they said, and then Miller was taken to the hospital.

Apparently, Bonovitch was slain later. The others said they fond his body in the alley after taking Miller to the hospital.

Miller said he didn't know why Bonovitch shot him. He said they had been close friends until several weeks ago when Bonovitch started "acting funny," and threatened the lives of several persons. Friends of the slain man said he was treated at a hospital several weeks ago for a stomach ailment.

DELAYS SESSION

Settlement of Suits Postpones Convening of Petit Jury.

The opening session of the county petit jury in the January term was postponed today until Wednesday when two judgment cases scheduled for hearing by the jury were settled out of court.

Jurors had assembled at the courthouse and were ready to convene this morning when settlement was effected in an $800 damage suit against Robert O. Berger, Kent, O., involving a traffic accident south of Mansfield. Filed by the I. T. Trucking company, Columbus, the suit asked a judgment for damages to one of the plaintiff's trucks.

In the other case which had been set for trial today, the Ashland Lumber and Supply company had asked a $719 judgment against Michael Folmer and others on a past-due account.

Six damage and equity cases remain on the calendar for hearing this week before the jury.

AMERICANS TO QUIT BARCELONA

U. S. Orders Evacuation While Insurgent Army Approaches Gates of Capital.

tion except persons necessary for defense would start immediately.

The Catalan economy minister ordered all stores, bars, cafes and private restaurants to release all available men for the work of encircling Barcelona with trenches

Only children's restaurants and those under state control were permitted to remain open, with skeleton staffs.

A cold, sharp wind and a brilliant sky kept the weather perfect for Generalissimo Franco, who has had unusual luck during the entire Catalonian offensive.

The wind increased the suffering of refugees and of residents who were without heat for their homes. Cloudless skies favored the insurgent air raiders.

Premier Dr. Juan Negrin's cabinet, after a long night meeting, announced the ministers themselves would remain at the capital to fight to the bitter end.

The government proclaimed a "state of war" throughout the territory. The effect of this measure, taken after two and one-half years of civil war, was not at once apparent but border observers believed it meant full martial law.

Generalissimo Franco's armies pressed on peristently in the campaign to take the great coastal city, which became the capital after the government moved first from Madrid and then from Valencia to escape the insurgent menace. Both Madrid and Valencia remain in government hands.

Renew Bomb Raids.

Insurgent planes bombed Barcelona three times this morning following repeated air raids yesterday which killed 49 and wounded 100 persons.

Meanwhile, the insurgent armies which yesterday captured Sitges, beach resort near Barcelona, pushed along the coast and inland columns converged on the capital.

A cabinet communique from Barcelona said the ministers appointed a committee comprising officials of the national government, the provincial regime of Catalonia and the Barcelona city administration to organize the evacuation of the capital.

The announcement explained that civilians otherwise would be "hampered by the work of fortification and defense."

With most men called to the colors and many women working behind the lines, the evacuation was expected to be confined largely to many thousands of refugee children and aged women who could be sent into northern Catalonia to escape air raids and leave the defenders unhampered.

Courts Transferred.

For several days, it was learned at the border, the government ministries have been moving archives out of the capital and provincial courts already have been transferred to northern Catalona.

HOSPITAL NOTES

GALION—Mrs. George Davies of East Church street underwent an operation Saturday morning at the Good Samaritan hospital.

J. J. Fitzpatrick, trial examiner for the NLRB hearing here whose illness caused the hearing to be postponed Thursday until this morning, was dismissed from the hospital Saturday.

GETS TAX FUNDS

County Receives $14,800, Last 1938 Sales Levy Allocation.

The final allocation of sales tax funds for 1938, totaling $14,849, was received today by County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe for distribution to the county sub-divisions for operating expenses.

Allocated from the December sales tax collections which showed a marked increase in Richland county, the funds represent a gain of about $4,000 over the preceding distribution.

Sales tax receipts for the first week of the new year in Richland county were $7,496, a drop of $859 from collections for the same week in 1938, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright.

Collections for the entire state, however, showed a $26,000 increase over figures for 1938, with 28 of the 88 counties sharing the increase which indicates improving retail business

CATTLEMEN TO MEET TUESDAY

Members of the Richland County Guernsey Producers association will elect officers and hear talks by two leading cattlemen at their annual meeting at 7 p. m. Tuesday at the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Speakers at the session will be Earl Schultz, Peterborough, N. H., representing the American Guernsey Cattle club, and Thomas Briggs, of the Ohio Guernsey Producers' association. Schultz will show motion pictures of outstanding Guernsey herds in the New England states.

The county association is headed by Otto Kline, of Raemelton farms. Neil S. Robinson of near Mansfield is secretary of the organization

JOINS IN DEBATE

Westinghouse Chairman To Discuss Monopolies In Broadcast.

The question of whether monopolies retard or advance business recovery will be debated at 9:30 p. m., Thursday, over the National Broadcasting company network by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general of the United States.

The debate will be broadcast on the NBC Town Hall program which brings discussions of current interest topics to radio listeners.

ELECTED BY OHIO GUN COLLECTORS

Guy E. Shawk of Mansfield was named historian of the Ohio Gun Collectors association at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the American Legion home at Bucyrus.

Other officers chosen were George Stoltz, Bucyrus, president; T. A. McMullen, Akron, vice president, and T. W. Brown, Canton, secretary-treasurer. Members elected to the executive board are Miller Bedford of New London, Russell Paterson of Akron, Don Soles of Ashland and R. L. Taylor of Columbus.

An honorary membership in the association was given Frantz Rosenberg of Littlehammer, Norway, who has the largest gun collection in Europe. Twenty-one new members were taken into the organization. The next meeting will be held in February at the Mayflower hotel in Akron.

HELPS FINANCE SPRING PLANTING

Farm Security Administration Offers Loans To Farmers.

Loans had been made available today by the Mansfield office of the Farm Security administration for Richland county farmers who need financing for their spring planting

H. B. Swearingen, manager of the office, said funds are available at 5 per cent interest for a maximum of five years. The money must be used for purchase of livestock, machinery, seed, and feed for animals. Funds are not available for purchase of real estate, Swearingen said.

Applications will be handled through the rehabilitation office in the Richland Trust building.

Socialists are ordinarily recognized by their willingness to share everything they don't have.

There are all kinds of motorists—including those who drive through a red light without realizing that it is there.

A New York city official says the great need in public service is for "college graduates who can write and speak English"—but shouldn't they also be able to spell the words?

To Again Enforce Traffic Laws.

ANNOUNCEMENT of intention to start another traffic law enforcement campaign in Mansfield is not especially convincing, in view of the fact that even short memories carry back to a number of similar sporadic activities which extended through a few days, or weeks, and were then dropped.

Driving practices and observance of traffic regulations become largely a matter of habit, inclination of motorists being, in a general way, to conform to practices of the city in which they are driving—including the common so-called minor violations of law.

The fact that there was a 40 per cent reduction in arrests for traffic violations in 1938, as compared with 1937, is clear indication of a let-down in enforcement as there will be no serious contention that there was any decrease in violations last year.

Nor does the explanation that illness among members of the police department in 1938 caused a reduction in arrests serve to clarify the situation, for—insofar as the public is concerned—it is difficult to understand why substitutes should not be available for temporary duty as patrolmen when regular officers are incapacitated by illness, which must be anticipated in any line of employment and which must be taken into account in the operation of either private or public business.

There is quite general recognition that several additional patrolmen could be used to advantage in traffic law enforcement. There will be a much more sympathetic public attitude toward increasing the police department personnel, however, if it is felt that ALL members of the department as now constituted are working to the extent of their ability in law enforcement—unhampered by political or personal favoritism.

Looking Toward Aviation Needs.

THE National Aeronautical association, at its recent convention in St. Louis, not only approved recent civil and military aviation proposals, but extended them. College courses in aviation would be beneficial, it was agreed, but should be preceded by earlier training. The association would therefore have flying courses in high schools preparing students for more advanced college work. It also recommended schools for training instructors.

There is much interest in aviation in this country, but mostly of the spectator variety. Airport managers are besieged by youngsters asking for jobs but having no idea of required qualifications. They have only a romantic interest in flying and need direction and training.

Many agree that it will be a fine thing to have more young people trained in various lines connected with aviation—aeronautic designing, mechanics, flying, airport ground work, and so on. It is a young and developing industry affording opportunities for a great variety of employment. Its sound development will be good for the whole country.

In all this, its military value is clear, but need not be overemphasized. If that side has been neglected to the danger point, it should be corrected as quickly as possible. In the long run, however, civil aviation may be of greater and more lasting importance.

More People 'Belong' to Church.

WHATEVER it may be taken to mean, church membership in the United States showed a substantial gain in 1938, with total membership in 200 denominations now listed at 64,156,827.

With a number of religious organizations too small to gain a place in a national census, but nevertheless active in their particular groups, it is estimated that fully three-fourths of the entire population of the United States makes claim to some sort of religious adherence.

The church membership gain of 960,000 last year was more than double the percentage of population gain in the United States, evidencing increased trend toward religious thought in this country.

When the principles of religion, as represented in some form by the more than sixty-four million people who hold church membership in this country, can be made the motivating force of individual conduct and community action, some of the present difficulties will cease to exist and such problems as law enforcement and juvenile delinquency will be much simplified.

To Choose Best Sportsman.

THE New York World's Fair announces that it is going to award a "Golden Laurel" next summer, at the fair's Academy of Sport, to the United States citizen who performed "the outstanding achievement in sport" in 1938. Ballots have been sent to sports writers and others. A majority of votes will name the winner.

According to the rules, every American citizen is eligible, and every voter may names three choices. Candidates may be male or female, amateur or professional.

The balloter is asked, under "suggestions," to note carefully the significant symbols in the artist's sketch of the Golden Laurel. There are a heart for courage, an arm for strength and skill, and a lamp for intellect. Under that last, the balloter is advised not to overlook the candidate's "tact, diplomacy or wisdom."

This should be a good game for the rest of the winter for the hordes of individuals who like to answer quizzes and debate the relative merits of their favorite sports and sportsmen.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Overlooking a sunny little slope that remains green with grass the year around is an oblong room which at once is the most important and least used of any major room in the Government establishment. It is the cabinet room. Two new members now occupy places there, Frank Murphy of Michigan as Attorney General and Harry Hopkins of New York as Secretary of Commerce. By virtue of their rank in the cabinet, Murphy occupies a seat near the head of the President's table, while Hopkins will be at the foot. If they were seated according to the weight of their influence upon the President probably Hopkins would outrank the whole cabinet and sit beside the President, but cabinet chairs are arranged that way.

The room is in the executive wing of the White House, looking out over the south yard of the grounds. The exposed side is mostly windows and glass doors—the three other walls have no windows at all. There on each Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. come the cabinet members and Vice-President Garner for an informal, friendly, though no less serious discussion of governmental affairs. At times they chat of small things and do nothing. At other times prolonged discussions of major subjects keep the members pinned to there seats for two hours or more at a stretch.

Solid Comfort.

THE chairs are solid leather and deep seated, the President's only slightly different—a shade taller—than the others. The members are seated according to the date of the creation of their departments. The three top-ranking departments, state, treasury and war, were created virtually in a breath early in the nation's history. The Secretary of State, concerned with foreign affairs, as in most governments, outranks the others, so he sits on the President's right at the long table, which seems almost to fill the 40-foot room. On the President's left sits Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, next in rank, while second in line on the right side sits Secretary of War Woodring.

The Vice President, who really has no legal position in the cabinet, but in this administration has been a potent member none-the-less, usually occupies a chair at the foot of the table, in front of a fireplace.

Scantily Decorated.

THE room is virtually barren of decoration. If our memory is right, it has five doors, three leading out to hallways which pass by on two sides, one leading out to the grassy plaza, and the fifth into the President's office. A clock sits on the mantel (the White House is full of clocks of every vintage from early French to modern streamline.) Over the mantel is a painting of Thomas Jefferson. For a generation or two Lincoln held the place of honor, but Jefferson replaced him two years ago.

Old Glory and the President's colors have a spot near the fireplace. At cabinet meetings, ash trays, pencils and pads are within reach of each member. These are cleared off between times and the surface is kept glossily polished.

The cabinet members are prompt at meetings. Vice-President Garner arrives from the Capitol in the block-long automobile the Senate provides him. They take their places and stand as the President enters. He sits. They sit. There are no attendants. Secret Service agents stand outside every door. That always is the case, wherever the President is.

What do they do? They advise and counsel the President. Occasionally, but very rarely, he asks them to vote, but he is not bound by their action. But in peace or war, they are the government's top hands.

German Embassy Closely Guarded

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Roosevelt himself is not much more carefully guarded by Uncle Sam's secret service men than are members of the German diplomatic staff in Washington. Ambassador Dieckhoff, to be sure, is on indefinite leave in the Fatherland, but Charge d'Affaires Hans Thomsen is just as much of a worry to the government's "dicks" as Dieckhoff would be if he were here. For that matter, even the prettiest secretary at Herr Hitler's headquarters on Massachusetts avenue is a severe headache to our federal plain clothes men—and to the local police, too.

It isn't that the "cops" care so intensively for the country's Teuton guests on the latters' own account.

What perturbs American officialdom is the thought:

"How perfectly terrible is would look if one of these Aryans were to be 'liquidated' or even shot at in our midst!"

"Sacred."

Nobody is quite so sacred as a foreign ambassador or minister or consul or any of their underlings in the various lands to which they may be assigned. Such a functionary can't so much as be arrested—not even if he commits murder. His home folk can be asked to recall him if he is objectionable enough. In an emergency he can be deported. But while he remains technically a diplomat he is entitled to every imaginable consideration from the nation to which he is accredited. For example, when two peoples go to war, each one's first thought is to repatriate its rival's embassadorial or ministerial representatives with all due respect. It is a point of honor.

Why, not so long ago a Maryland policeman, who did not know anything of international law or custom, arrested an attache of Washington's Persian legation for the comparatively trifling offense of auto speeding. On the strength of this affront Persia broke off diplomatic relations with the United States. The state department apologized profusely, but Persia is not satisfied yet. It transacts business with Washington through the embassy of Turkey, a "neutral power."

Suppose the Worst.

Considering the row that the incident created, suppose some crack-brained individual were to take a shot at a Nazi representative here?

Our G-men had not thought of that up to the time when Herschel Grynszpan, a Polish Jew, killed German Embassadorial Attache Ernst vom Rath in Paris. That tragedy started them a-fretting. Could such a thing happen in Washington?

Well, no, probably not.

But now comes the news of a pot shot through the window into the office of the German consulate general in Amsterdam and another one into the German legation's quarters at The Hague.

That sort of thing is contagious.

And—

Oh, how they hate to think of the possibility of a shot or two into the German embassy here!

An irresponsible cuss could take a shot into the British, the French or maybe the Italian embassy and London, Paris or Rome unquestionably would accept Washington's assurance that it was an individual "nutty" act—and let it go at that.

But Berlin would not.

Berlin has a "complex."

Its version would be that "Jews did it."

Germany probably isn't crazy, but Hitler evidently is, and he seems to run Germany. Stirring up a lunatic is bilious business. You do not exactly like to admit that you are afraid of him. Still, you do not quite like to have one of your own firecrackers exploded under him.

Timely Editorial

The Learned Are Welcome.

The winner of the latest Nobel prize in physics, Enrico Fermi, landed in New York recently and was reported to be planning to live permanently in this country.

Without knowing why Professor Fermi, whose previous attachment was with the University of Rome, might be wanting to stay here, Americans like to believe it's because this still is the land of opportunity for Europeans who don't like the way things are going.

In centuries past it was able to accommodate a lot of them looking for a better place to work and live. They made America what it is today—a fact which might give those European leaders apparently determined to make this country seem an attractive refuge for all persons who don't agree with them something to think about.—Canton Repository.

Health Advice

'Curing' a Cold Still Debatable.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHETHER you can prevent a cold or head it off once it has begun is a question that probably never will be settled. The advocates of one form of treatment or the other point to their successes, but the skeptics say that if, for some reason, they do not have a cold after the treatment nobody knows whether it was the treatment that stopped it or whether they were not going to have a cold anyway.

For what they are worth, however, let us examine the plans:

1. Vaccines—The most reliable statistics are those from corporations such as the New York Edison Company, which inoculated 1,000 of its employes and found that 60 per cent reported freedom from colds. They have continued to do this year after year. The Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, inoculates all its employes with vaccines and reports the incidence of colds much reduced.

Sprayed in Nose.

A variant of the use of vaccines by injections in the arm is to spray the vaccines in the nose. The theory is that the immunity against colds is local in the cells of the nose rather than in the body cells and blood generally. A large number of good results have been reported from this treatment.

2. Alkalinization of the body. The old, old belief that an acid condition of the body predisposes to colds gained some scientific support from the researches of Dr. Volney S. Cheney, and Dr. Smiley and Dr. Maughan of Cornell.

At the first sign of "cold" or influenza, all food is stopped, but plenty of cool, pure water is given throughout the course of the disease. Food in an inflamed alimentary canal is worse than useless, will not digest and taxes the flagging heart in an effort to get rid of it. No one will starve or need food for a few days.

Grapefruit Given.

The juice of from five to 15 grapefruit is given daily, divided into potions every four hours or oftener. In between the juice potions, not with them, sodium bicarbonate is given, a teaspoon in a glass of water, then a quarter teaspoonful every four hours or oftener until symptoms are practically gone.

Orange juice and lemon juice may be used instead of grapefruit, but are not satisfactory. Orange juice is sweet and tends to disturb the victim's digestion; lemon juice is too sour to be used in quantities. Grapefruit juice alone will achieve results, but the soda hastens alkalinity. Citrus fruits taste acid, but citric acid makes the system alkaline. Grapefruit juice and soda will usually cure an ordinary cold in from 36 to 48 hours, relieve bronchitis, often prevent or mitigate pneumonia.

What Do You Deserve?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

A PEEVED PAPA wrote the following . . . signed his name and address in the obvious hope that I'd publish them in this column and give the Lady Wife the bawling out he thought she deserved. Nothing doing! This column hasn't gray hairs behind its ears for nothing—and gentlemen readers can manhandle their own wives, or take the consequences. However, since both topic and tantrum are timely, I'll broadcast his bleat.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Sitting here this afternoon with our baby daughter while my wife attended an afternoon bridge party this question bitterly arose in my mind:

"Should a young modern husband (we can't afford a maid or nurse) stay home diapering the baby, filling and washing bottles while the young wife and Mother sits at a friend's house playing bridge and smoking cigarets?

"An Angry Young Father."

Something familiar about that complaint, isn't there? You may not have dawdled and diapered Snookums while the Missus went her free and blithesome way. But you've undoubtedly felt that you've Been Done Dirt, many a time...and sworn to yourself that you Never Deserved such treatment.

Didn't you? Are you quite sure? Let's think it over.

Here, for example, is our aggrieved young friend, tending to his infant while Mama makes whoopeee. Does HE deserve such treatment? Thousands of Mad Males will instantly respond that he doesn't. Sorry to disagree, My Hearties, but I'm of the definite opinion that HE DESERVES ALL HE GETS — AND THEN SOME! Nor does this apply to one isolated individual...it goes for the whole human race, including myself.

WE GET WHAT WE ASK FOR IN THIS WORLD. WE ESTABLISH OUR OWN RATINGS.... AND PEOPLE TREAT US ACCORDING TO OUR OWN PRICE MARK. IF WE DON'T RESPECT OUR OWN STATUS, IT'S A CINCH THAT NO ONE ELSE WILL OR SHOULD DO IT FOR US.

We have no "rights" save those we make and maintain for ourselves. This statement will startle and be indignantly denied by many people. "But what about this man's position as a husband," they will cry. The answer is, HE HASN'T ANY POSITION UNLESS AND UNTIL HE MAKES ONE FOR HIMSELF. The Marriage Ceremony and the Bill of Rights may seem to confer certain privileges and powers upon a citizen...but, when you get right down to brass tacks, no law on earth can guarantee that he'll get them. That's up to him. ...and him alone. And if he's too lazy or spineless or stupid to protect himself against abuse and imposition, that's just his bad luck and he'll have to accept the consequences.

There is no unfairness in such an arrangement. God has provided man with the wherewithall to carve out an honorable estate in life...and that job is his first and most sacred duty. He may never be brilliant, rich or famous but he need never be despised—unless he invites it himself. And when he does, he has only himself to thank.

No man need be mocked by his mate—no woman need be abused by her husband—no child need sacrifice his life to a selfish parent—UNLESS THEY PERMIT IT BY THEIR OWN WEAKNESS. But why should anyone permit humiliation or frustration? Because it's so much easier to SNIVEL than to SWEAT or SWAT...so much pleasanter to PITY than PROTECT oneself.

But we don't, in the end, fool anyone by our bleats—least of all God. 'And it's my private conviction that most of our grievous abuses are just Jehovah's way of saving—only, of course, in much nicer language—

"STOP STICKING YOUR NECK OUT, SAP,— AND USE THE SPUNK I GAVE YOU!"

A Farmer's Diary

The Burning Barn.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WHILE driving at night, I saw the glow of a light upon the western sky, some distance ahead. It was small, at first, but the reddened patch increased in size, and I came, at last, to the top of a hill where I could see a straw stack burning beside a huge barn, about a mile below.

Bits of half-burned straw rose high into the air, and were carried toward me, on the wind, emitting the odor of burning weeds. The barn was plainly doomed.

The whole valley was alight. Men were running and yelling. A long line of motor cars had stopped and drawn to the side of the road. Groups of gaping watchers stood enjoying the excitement. A line of men had formed a bucket brigade, and were passing futile, dripping pails along from hand to hand, until the last man threw it on the fire. Women looked on from a safer distance.

The barn was filled with hay, fodder and threshed grain. Soon the whole end of it had ignited. I heard the discontented squeals of pigs, the disturbed lowing of cows and calves, the excited whinnering of horses, plunging and pawing in their stalls.

I knew the entire animal population of that building would be burned to death. No human effort could reach them.

Ten minutes more and the huge bank barn was wrapped in hissing, roaring flames that tore through lower spaces like monsters, to devour the cringing life within. I heard two horses scream, and some cattle bellow—and I walked back into the field away from the sound.

As I turned, I saw ten chickens fly out from the west side, aflame like living torches. They fell, their scortched bodies struggling weakly, upon the snow.

Finally, the great shingled roof fell in with a heavy roar and a surge of upward sparks. The space within was white hot, like a fiery furnace. One car at a time, the excited crowd began to disperse.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There was once a shy little Broadway chorus girl who didn't know her way around at all — and cows have wings!

She never went out with the stage-door johnnies because it wasn't proper for a young girl to go out with just anybody, and she never encouraged the attention of young men because her mother had taught her that nice young ladies never accepted anything except candy and flowers from young gentlemen.

In all there must have been a hundred young swains who wanted to meet her and take her out dancing, but she always managed her refusals in such a way that they thought she was doing them a favor.

THEN one night two young men were introduced to her and on some impulse she let them persuade her to accept an invitation to attend a late show. Now by a curious coincidence both of these young men were the sons of millionaires, but of course our little heroine knew nothing of this. So they went to a late show and then they had breakfast at a breakfast club, and they eventually drove her home in a cream-colored limousine a half a block long.

Next day one of the young men came back alone, and that night the other young man met her at the theater. She was so surprised when she found him waiting there and it almost broke her heart when she had to inform him that the other young man was going to take her to visit his mother.

That was the beginning of a whirlwind courtship that ended a friendship and held the Broadway observers entranced for some time. For of course the two young men were pals, and of course they fell out. They couldn't see each other because of the smoke in their eyes.

For a time the shy little chorus girl let both of them come to see her, because she was tender hearted and couldn't stand the thought of bringing distress even to a poor little rich boy, but the time finally came when she had to admit that her choice had been made, and the other went away.

HE DIDN'T go to China, or join the French Foreign Legion, or anything like that. As a matter of fact, he remained in New York, and he's here right now. But he didn't go to see our Nell any more and he couldn't see his ex-pal for the smoke in his eyes.

It was in all the papers—the wedding, I mean. The society photographers were there and the society columns were full of it, and the shy little chorus girl and the rich man's son sailed away on a two months' honeymoon in Europe. They're back, and very happy, I understand.

The point I wish to make is this: the papa of the young man she married is worth a million dollars, but the papa of the young man she spurned is worth two millions.

Didn't I tell you she was just a poor little girl who didn't know her way around?

One-Minute Test.

1. Which is correct: "Far from the maddening crowd," or "far from the madding crowd"?
2. Does the president of the United States pay income tax on his salary?
3. When were hymns first written?

Words of Wisdom.

The country is both the philosopher's garden and his library, in which he reads and contemplates the power, wisdom and goodness of God.—Penn.

Hints on Etiquette.

If you are giving a bridge party and are not quite sure of the matter of prizes, award two—one for the man with the highest score and one for the woman with the highest. Then you may add one or two booby prizes.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. "Far from the madding crowd." It is a quotation from Gray's "Elegy in a Country Church-yard."
2. The president's salary is not taxable. However, any other income he may have is taxed.
3. Hymns can be traced to man's first worship. In ancient Egypt they were written to the sun god, Ra.

Food Institute Opens 3-Day Run Tomorrow At Ohio Theater

Homemakers of Mansfield and vicinity will have an opportunity to see the latest in modern cooking on parade during the next three days when the 1939 edition of the Gasco Food institute is presented here. This outstanding cooking event is being staged again through the co-operation of local merchants, the Gas Company and The News-Journal. Programs are in charge of Miss Louise McFarland, experienced food lecturer and home economist. She will be assisted by Miss Pauline Schofield, local home service representative of the Gas Company. James Terry, institute manager, will be responsible for all details and arrangements of the program as well as all physical properties of the Food institute. All meetings will be held in the Ohio theater.

Complete Change of Program.

This year's Food Institute presents a complete change of program which is filled with interesting and informative material and features many dramatic surprises.

The first day's program which gets under way at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, is entitled "Cooking Cavalcade." the program develops in a dramatic manner a comparison of old-fashioned cooking methods with those of today. Many new and attractive food dishes are prepared during the session.

Additional programs will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday at 9 a. m.

All programs and demonstrations of the Food Institute will again be conducted in a beautiful model all-gas kitchen. However, this year's kitchen has been completely remodeled and contains the latest up-to-the-minute refinements, including a new Tappan gas range with the sensational new "Visualite" oven, and a Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator.

Free Prizes At Each Session.

Valuable merchandise and food prizes will be given away free following each program of the Food Institute. The list of prizes this year include a Tappan gas range with "Visualite" oven as the grand prize, a "Wear-Ever" 3-way Griddle, a 14-piece refrigerator set, a 5-piece kitchen canister set, and many baskets of groceries and other food prizes.

Be sure to attend the opening program of the Gasco Food Institute tomorrow beginning at 9.00 o'clock in the morning Plan, also, to attend the other two interesting sessions

Biscuit Company Plans Expanded Advertising Drive

The 1939 advertising plans of National Biscuit company were presented this week at a meeting of district sales executives from all sections of the country, assembled at the home office in New York.

At the conclusion of the meeting, F. K. Montgomery, vice president in charge of sales, announced that newspaper advertising will figure prominently in the new campaigns for both crackers and cookies, and National Biscuit shredded wheat.

Montgomery said, "In our opinion, intelligent and skillful sales and advertising plans will bring satisfactory results in 1939, when such plans are backed up by merchandise of the finest quality offered to the public at fair prices. We anticipate that newspaper advertising will be very helpful to us in the forthcoming campaigns, which are among the largest and most powerful we have had in the history of the company."

Vitality Low? Sugar Helps To Restore Pep

In some respects our English friends are much more advanced that we here in America. They appreciate, for instance, that a cup of hot tea with sugar does much to restore vitality in the late afternoon. So well is this custom observed that even British business houses regard it as a matter of course.

Authorities agree that personal pep is lower around 4 o'clock in the afternoon than at any other time during the day. The demands of modern business leave little time or opportunity for an afternoon pick-up. However, in the past few years more and more people have come to realize that they're tired toward the end of the day and now enjoy a "soda," a piece of candy, a cookie, or some other tidbit for the true refreshment that only something sweet can give.

Pure cane sugar is most easily and quickly digested of all foods Domino sugars are really concentrated vitality. In sweetened drinks, in cookies and candy, or in tablet form, they are nature's greatest energy source. That's why between sets, tennis champions take a sweet drink and during periods of particular strain quickly renew energy with a sugar tablet.

Don't Forget Flowers for Company Dinner

It is pretty generally accepted by present day hostesses that for "company" meals, flowers are almost as important as food, and the arrangements of centerpieces is an important item to be decided when planning a meal for guests.

The Stuhldreher Floral company, 48 West Fourth street, oldest floral company in Mansfield, will arrange the centerpieces each day for the Gasco Food institute.

Stuhldreher's are able to arrange the freshest of flowers for they raise their own at their two greenhouses at 240 Lexington avenue and 175 Cline avenue. They have 50,000 square feet of beds under glass

NEW SILVERWARE PATTERN TO BE DISPLAYED AT FOOD SCHOOL

Lovely, gleaming silverware is dear to the heart of every hostess, and that joy which comes from selecting a favorite pattern should last through the many years of satisfactory service.

Holmes and Edwards silverware is well known for its beauty and fine quality, and will be featured by Rogers and Company, 25 North Main street, at the Gasco Food Institute, which opens tomorrow morning at the Ohio theater

Holmes and Edwards' new pattern, "Danish Princess," which reflects the most recent style trends is now offered in a 49-piece service set. This set will also be on display at the Glasco Institute tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

Many other patterns in this famous silverplate are now being offered at Rogers and Company. They may be purchased in complete sets or open stock.

Dairy Products At Food Institute From Page Dairy

When Miss Louise McFarland, Gasco Food Institute lecturer, creams shortening for a cake or mixes the ingredients for a souffle Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning at the Ohio theater for the Gasco Food Institute, she will be using Page Dairy company products for all her work.

The dairy will furnish Kleen-Maid butter, Grade A milk and cream for the demonstrator, and will include in the baskets of food to be distributed at the school one pound of the butter and a quart of Grade A Dacro-protected milk. The dairy products will be included in each of the eight baskets which will be given at each of the sessions of the school.

Proper Care Of Gas Range Profitable

The sensible treatment of the surfaces of your kitchen equipment will pay dividends. Your gas range naturally gets more abuse than any other kitchen unit because it performs the major operation of preparing three meals a day.

Enamel which is now used on the surface of the modern gas range is a form of glass, although of an entirely different type than crystal dinnerware. It is subjected to varying degrees of heat for long periods of time and countless stains from foods spilled upon it. Liquids boil over; frequently hot fats spatter, and acid foods such as tomatoes, citrus fruits and vinegar drip annoyingly onto the surface. These stain the enamel readily unless quickly removed.

To remove these spilled foods it is frequently the common practice of the busy housewife to pick up the first thing handy—usually a wet dish cloth. But to use a cold wet cloth upon hot enamel eventually will result in a cracked, crazed surface that spoils the appearance and ruins the enamel.

Spilled foods and spatters should be wiped off at once with a clean dry cloth, and when the enamel is cool, the area should be cleansed with a mild soap and lukewarm water. It is natural for many homemakers to apply a powder cleanser, rubbing vigorously, but the majority of such cleansers are too harsh for enamel surfaces, although indispensable for other household uses.

When hot dishes are allowed to remain upon the enamel, the condensing moisture underneath the vessel results in a clouded finish Likewise, the moisture from a bottle of cold milk will leave a dull ring.

The modern gas range has been designed for easy cleaning. The top burners utilized in cooking a meal may be wiped with a clean cloth, and if foods have collected around the burner rims, these may be brushed free.

Firestone to Have Radio Display at Ohio

What modern kitchen is complete without a radio, and what modern home can survive without the dozens of handy little appliances which are available at the Firestone Tire Store! Gadgets for the home, the car, the shop are to be had at this store, as are a variety of nationally advertised radios.

Some of the radios distributed by the company will be featured in a lobby display at the Ohio theater Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during the Gasco Food institute. Miss Louise McFarland, demonstator and lecturer, will be on the platform to tune in the attractive four-tube white model which is suitable for kitchen, bedroom, or carrying on trips and picnics.

The featured instrument can be held in the palm of the hand, has a zipper carrying case, all mechanisms are built in, and it will operate anywhere on either AC or DC current.

'Utopia' In the Kitchen

Does the above scene from the second day's program of the Gasco Food Institute depict 'Utopia" to you? Attend tomorrow's program and see this interesting and novel presentation in which the man of the house, in the person of the Food Institute manager, takes over the cooking for a portion of the program. He'll prepare some he-man food dishes that will appeal to the men folks—so bring them along to this program tomorrow at 9:00 a. m. in the Ohio theater.

Westbrook Flour To Be Featured

Westbrook Fancy Family flour will be used exclusively at the Gasco Food institute, which opens tomorrow morning and continues through Thursday at the Ohio theater under the direction of Miss Louise McFarland.

This fluffy, light-textured flour is milled in Mansfield at the Lantz Mills. It is made from the finest of Ohio wheat and is sacked and distributed by the Tracy and Avery company.

Gold Medal Fancy Canned fruits will also be featured at the Food Institute this week. Miss McFarland plans to stress Gold Medal Fancy peaches, pears, pineapple, fruit salad, pumpkin, and all the many other fruits, such as cherries, berries, etc.

Frigid Foods Save Wives' Time In Meal Preparations

The day when fresh fruit and vegetables were available only during the summer months is a thing of the past. Now through the Frigid Food method of quick-frosting any fresh fruit, vegetable or meat is available for consumption in any market any time of the year.

The Gasco Food institute, which opens tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock under the direction of Miss Louise McFarland, at the Ohio theater is featuring all the Frigid Food products. Arbaugh's market, Ropps grocery, Park grocery, C. C. Blair, and Lloyd Dillon are the local retailers of this product.

Many housewives question the necessity of frozen foods when distribution is so perfected that fresh things are nearly always available.

The numerous advantages of these frozen foods give adequate reason for the necessity, however. Frigid Foods save time in meal preparation because the foods are all cleaned and ready to cook, the cooking time is diminished, labor of hulling, stringing and cleaning is eliminated, refrigerator space is saved, net rather than gross weight is all that the buyer pays for, and the quality is uniformly high at all seasons of the year.

Every kind of perishable food is quick-frosted at low temperatures to preserve their freshness, their appearance and color, their flavor, their sugar sweetness and their vitamins.

Frigid Food products are no more expensive than the same foods bought fresh from the markets. They are economical to use because there is no waste, trim or hull pods to be eliminated.

For a hurry-up dessert, split drop cakes in halves, cover with small portions of fresh or canned fruit or berries and diced marshmallows mixed with brown sugar. Dot with butter and bake or broil five minutes. Serve warm.

CHEERFUL, MODERN KITCHEN A BIG AID IN PREPARING MEALS

Perhaps the best aid to housewives in preparing meals, besides cooking instructions, is a cheerful and modern kitchen.

A bright, conveniently arranged kitchen makes household tasks seem much easier, and especially when the furnishings are such as those displayed by the Quality Furniture company, 27 North Park street, at the Gasco Food institute in the Ohio theater tomorrow, Wednesday, and Thursday.

A complete selection of breakfast sets and kitchen cabinets, in white or attractive colors with modern decorative motifs that harmonize with every kitchen, are now available at the Quality Furniture store.

Also of special interest this week at the Quality is the semi-annual carload sale of Ostermoor mattresses, featuring this famous make of innerspring mattresses at substantial savings. Ostermoor mattress provides many points of superiority, including the flexible coil innerspring, for the utmost in resilience. Each coil in the Ostermoor acts independently of other coils, yet all act in perfect unison. The Ostermoor felt protection pad acts as a soft flexible foundation for the thick layers of felt used. Other features of this mattress are the new style handles, air-ventilation, and reinforced side border and flexible cable edge. The Ostermoor mattress is sold in Mansfield at the Quality.

Kitchens Need Careful Plan For Smartness

Kitchens, like costumes, are smartest when well planned, according to Miss Louise McFarland, lecturer of the 1939 Gasco Food Institute, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Ohio theater.

"A woman who would not think of wearing a red dress, blue coat and green hat often allows her kitchen to become a haphazard assemblage of unrelated equipment and color" she points out.

To remodel a kitchen for smartnes and convenience it must first be carefully planned in order to arrange the working centers to the best advantage. then the plan must be visualized with new equipment before buying anything, Miss McFarland advises.

"No matter how few or how many changes one makes in the kitchen, the decorative treatment must be kept in mind from the beginning, as it cannot be decided satisfactorily afterward. Accessories and accents also should be chosen as carefully as a woman selects the shade of rouge, lipstick and eye shadow to point up her costume."

Attractive results are possible with a new gas range, a gas refrigerator and a sink of pastel or ivory. The remodeling job is greatly simplified by installing equipment of white enamel, which harmonizes with any background color selected. Then variations and changes may be made in the kitchen setting from time to time without giving special consideration to fixed colors in the equipment.

Model Kitchen Travels In Trailer

Gay Cotton Prints Will Make You Smile at Work

Does your life seem dull and drab? Do you look at your household duties with distaste? Maybe your clothes are at fault. After all, that old black alpaca isn't very cheerful, and that faded print with the torn pocket doesn't send your family off to work and school feeling very happy either.

Why don't you treat yourself to a couple of smart looking new cotton prints? Lovely ones can be purchased at Kobackers for less than a dollar, and a whole wardrobe of new house frocks will cost less than $5.

In connection with the Gasco Food institute which will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Ohio theater, Kobackers are featuring some of the early spring style wash dresses.

In keeping with the spirit of displaying early spring merchandise Kobackers have assembled some of their loveliest garments in the Cotton Shop. There you will find fine, full count fabrics made into attractive dresses, trimmed with quality buttons, buckles, ruchings, and pleatings

Garments manufactured by nationally known companies will be the only ones carried in stock by Kobackers, and sizes from 12 to 52 will be available to the women of Mansfield and the surrounding communities.

Stocks are complete now, last year's dresses look pretty desolate. The week of the Gasco Food institute cooking school is the time to buy some bright print frocks.

CP Seal Marks a New Standard of Cooking Perfection

Designed, constructed and laboratory tested according to the highest known standards of efficiency, the new CP gas ranges being made by some 16 leading gas range manufacturers offer the housewife an entirely new standard of cooking performance. It is said that no development since the advent of the automatic refrigerator has so stirred the imagination of homemakers everywhere as has this new gas range which has 22 features of superiority.

After years of research and experimental testing by the American Gas association in co-operation with leading gas range manufacturers, the CP range models were first introduced to the public in August, 1938. Since then, they have caused considerable excitement wherever they have been demonstrated.

The letters CP which mark all of these ranges regardless of trade name, stand for Certified Performance. Every range bearing this seal must be equipped with 22 improved features which have been set up as a standard by the testing laboratories of the American Gas association.

These features include such advantages as automatic top-burner, oven and broiler lighting, no more matches needed; new dual purpose simmer top burners for waterless cooking; one or more giant high-speed top burners that give fastest, most economical heat ever known, new efficiencies that cut top burner fuel costs more than one-third.

Here is a new dressing for fruit or vegetable salad: Mix one tablespoon of French dressing until smooth with three tablespoons peanut butter, add two tablespoons of some tart jelly, and then one-third of a cup of French dressing. Beat with a fork. A good dressing for fruit or lettuce salad is made by adding one-third cup diced raw apple to half a cup of French dressing.

NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD TO BE FEATURED AT SCHOOL

"Flavor Harmony" that's the test that proves the quality and taste appeal of Nickles' Butter-nut Bread which will be used Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday by Miss Louise McFarland in her demonstration lectures for the News-Journal cooking school at the Ohio theater. The smooth texture, and appealing flavor of Butter-nut bread adds considerably to the a meal.

During the past three months taste enjoyment to be derived from the Nickles' Bakery has featured Butter-nut Bread as a means of perking-up lazy appetites. The delicious and wholesome bread, eaten with meals adds a new zest to eating.

The particular attitude of the bakery regarding the making of this bread accounts for its perfection in appearance and flavor.

Sperial wheat is selected for the flour, which is blended according to special formula and then permitted to age in a tremendous storage room large enough to hold 10 carloads of flour.

All pastries, rolls, and breads made in a large Nickles' plant are given the same supervision and care that you would exercise in your own home. Skilled bakers and pastry cooks compound the ingredients which go into each article sold, and special care is taken to develop the nutritive qualities of the food products.

Square Deal Stores To Provide Foods

When the Gasco Food institute opens Tuesday at 9 a. m. in the Ohio theater auditorium with Miss Louise McFarland as lecture-demonstrator some of the products which will be used in her recipes will be furnished by the Square Deal food stores, headed by Ralph A. Schad.

The association, one of the city's major retail organizations, operates about 60 retail stores in the Mansfield area and 25 more in Richland and surrounding counties for the distribution of standard grocery products.

Under the Square Deal plan the best of food products are sold at low prices because purchases in quantity are possible for the large organization. As a result of their own savings merchants in the Square Deal stores are able to pass along their savings to the customers in lower costs

These stores are operated on a co-operative basis with each store owner sharing the profits, and the stores feature certain products each week at greater savings for the benefit of their customers.

Birdie Brand Coffee In School

There is an interesting story back of Birdie brand coffee, which the Bissman company will furnish for the Gasco Food institute at the Ohio theater this week.

Bissman company lays claim to being not only the one and only company in Mansfield that roasts its own coffee, but the largest "roasters" in central Ohio.

The coffee is roasted under the supervision of William Bissman, a connoisseur on the blending and roasting of coffee. The company buys green coffee from the plantations in Bogota, Sumatra and Central America.

The coffee is shipped to Mansfield where it is blended and then aged, the aging period ranging from two to three months, depending upon the time of year.

Then it is ready for roasting, a process of eight hours, as the huge drum holding the coffee beans must revolve slowly and continuously over a low gas flame.

It is then placed in a flat tank which shakes out the chaff and at the same time cools the beans. After that it goes to the grinding room after which it is sacked for retail distribution. Thus Birdie brand coffee's freshness is not a matter of days but of hours.

It is obtainable, however, in the whole bean as well as the ground. Since its introduction to the local market a little over a year ago it has become one of the leading sellers in the territory serviced by the Bissman company. The company also features two other brands: Better Cup and Steel Cut coffee.

STEP-SAVING CURTIS CABINETS TO HAVE PART IN INSTITUTE

Chief efficiency factor in today's step-saving kitchens is the block unit type arrangement of appliances and cabinets as featured by Curtis, according to Miss Louise McFarland director of the Gasco Food institute which opens Tuesday morning in the Ohio theater under the sponsorship of the Gasco institute and Mansfield merchants.

Curtis cabinets, which will be used exclusively in the institute, are distributed in Mansfield by the Home Materials Lumber company. Curtis cabinets also have been featured in all Gasco Food institutes and are recommended by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Pioneers in the field of kitchen modernization since their organization in 1866, the Curtis people have kept pace with the trend toward more efficient and more step-saving kitchens, adapting their cabinets to fit in with present day kitchen appliances.

Built in enough various styles that they may be used as flexible units in newly built homes or old houses, the 1939 style Curtis cabinets are a far cry from the awkward and bulky old fashioned "kitchen cabinet" which graced almost every kitchen 20 years ago

How spacious these new Curtis cabinets are, can be seen at the institute where Miss McFarland has planned a remarkably efficient arrangement of sink, range, refrigerator, work table and cabinets.

Cleanser Has Many and Varied Uses

Week after week, in leading daily newspapers throughout the country, you'll see this slogan in 1939: "Wash and Clean With Climalene" Every newspaper advertisement pounds in this point that Climalene is not only a remarkable suds-builder and soap-saver in laundry and dishpan, but has no superior for such important housecleaning tasks as removing grime and dirt from painted floors and woodwork, washable walls, linoleum, porch floors and railings, or bathroom tiling and porcelain.

Climalene is a grease-dissolving cleanser, containing no soap or abrasives. Stubborn dirt and grime quickly disappear under its grease-dissolving action. Yet Climalene can't scratch the finest surface—it leaves no film behind.

Any kind of housecleaning — from cellar to attic. Use just a tablespoon to a gallon of water for removing dirt from painted floors or woodwork washable walls . . . kitchen linoleum . . . bathroom tiling, tubs and porcelain

Cleaning equipment regularly used in cooking school demonstrations. Effective demonstrations include the cleaning of drain boards, cupboard shelves, stove burners, sinks, refrigerators, table tops. It's grand for those "quick cleanups" in the kitchen.

Use a little Climalene and you'll need a lot less soap. That's welcome economy. It's economy, too, when you use a cleanser that helps dissolve those stubborn stains and brings washes out whiter. It's a real satisfaction to see dishes and silverware emerge from the dishpan free of grease and food stains. Use a little Climalene in the water when you wash sticky cake pans or greasy pots, kettles and skillets.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

"We're Using FRIGID FOODS At Our Gasco Institute This Year"

MISS LOUISE McFARLAND, Gasco Institute Lecturer.

GASCO 1939 FOOD INSTITUTE

"Within the past year, quick Frozen Fruits, Vegetables and Sea Foods have become a definite part of the modern housewife's menu preparation; I am glad that this year we have been able to secure FRIGID FOODS for our Gasco Food Institute, for these quick frozen foods are the best obtainable." —LOUISE McFARLAND

LOOK! HERE IS WHERE YOU CAN END YOUR SEARCH FOR FRESHNESS

FRIGID FOODS

YOU KNOW what a wealth of flavor there is in fresh-picked fruits and vegetables—or sea food just taken from the water.

Just such delicious, fresh goodness is brought to you in every package of FRIGID FOOD you buy. The original goodness of the food is SEALED IN by the Frigid Food quick-freezing method—right on the spot where the fruits and vegetables are picked—where seafood is brought in—where the poultry and meats are dressed.

The FRIGID FOOD loose pack will also please you. This improved method frosts every pea, for example, individually. You can therefore use part of a carton without defrosting the entire contents.

So convenient to buy. No guessing about the amount you need No preparation for cooking. Do you realize that one pound of Frigid Food Peas is equal to 3½ pounds of unshelled peas?

SINCE IT COSTS NO MORE WHY NOT USE THE BEST?

FRIGID-FOODS are really fresher than those that you buy in the city markets. Fresh foods shipped into the markets are, as a general rule, picked before they are ripe and are allowed to ripen in transit, which is not the way nature intended it to be To enjoy real food flavor, the product must be allowed to be sun-ripened naturally in the garden or on the bush, vine or tree, just like we pick them to be packed and frozen—Strictly fresh, thereby capturing and retaining the original flavor and goodness of the sun-ripened fruits and vegetables

ALL FRIGID FOODS are packed at the exact period of ripeness and packed at the point of origin in Frigid Food plants, which are maintained with the highest degree of sanitation and under the supervision of our scientific experts in this particular line All Frigid Foods are uniform in quality, scrupulously clean, ready to use—seasonal foods with their own fresh color and delicious flavor all year round and are not exposed in markets to the elements of nature.

Next to picking your own off your back yard bushes, vines or garden, we recommend FRIGID FOOD PRODUCTS.

Modern Cooking Saves Vitamins In Vegetables

When the modern housewife adopts the new short-cut cooking methods she finds the instantaneous heat and quick simmer adjustments of the modern gas range important. Heat may be quickly adjusted to any degree desired from the simmer flame over which vebetables may be gently steamed without breaking down their fibers, to intense heat for fast frying.

Each type of vegetable and each amount to be prepared exacts a different degree of heat to cook it properly. Yet no matter what the method a recipe calls for, the job can be done best with flexible and dependable gas.

These new cooking methods also provide a two-way economy because both the valuable minerals of vegetables are preserved and less gas is required.

Two methods of boiling vegetables are recommended by Miss Louise McFarland, lecturer of the 1939 Gasco Food Institute, which opens at the Ohio theater tomorrow, in order to retain the highest percentage of vitamins and minerals so necessary to health, as well as to keep that fresh color and flavor.

Low Water Method: Use any souce pan provided it has a closely fitted cover. Place vegetables in pan, add water to about a half-inch in depth and cover. Once steaming begins, reduce the flame to the simmer stage. If your present range does not have simmer-set burners—reduce flame as low as possible.

Waterless or Butter Method: Prepare vegetables and let stand in cold water. Select pan with tight fitting cover. Place 1 inch cube of butter in pan, lift vegetables out of water and place in pan onto butter, cover with two large outer leaves of head lettuce which have been dipped in cold water. Place tight fitting lid on pan, set on burner using simmer-set, or lowest possible flame. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for steaming, depending on vegetable being cooked. A one inch cube of butter is sufficient for one pound of vegetables.

Ranges Cook Entire Meal At Same Time

An idea in economical meal preparation, which is gaining in popularity, is the utilization of one unit of a gas range at a time. With the new accurate oven heat control almost anyone can prepare an oven meal with success. Every housewife who values her time is adopting this type of cookery for special days when freedom from culinary cares is especially desirable.

There is rare good flavor to foods cooked in the oven and infinite variety awaits the adventurer in this respect. All that is necessary is to prepare the foods, preheat the oven of your modern gas range, place the meal therein and forget about it until ready to serve. Or, if you wish to be absent from the kitchen for a longer period of time, use the cold oven start, setting the heat control for the minimum temperature of the new low temperature burner.

The rules of oven cooking are simple and few; select foods requiring the same temperatures and baking time; also use any pans which fit into the oven conveniently and allow ample space between for the circulation of air. For long period cooking, vegetables are left whole, otherwise sliced or diced To prevent discoloration of potatoes, they may be parboiled for five minutes before placing in the oven, or brushed with butter.

Use 'Little Crow' Pancake Flour

One of Mansfield's oldest business establishments is the Albert F Remy company 320 North Diamond street, jobbers and distributors of staple food and household products

A Remy specialty — "Little Crow" pancake flour—will be used in demonstrations at the Gasco Food Institute tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday at the Ohio theater.

Manufactured with both buckwheat and wheat, "Little Crow" flour is convenient and economical. With it the housewife can prepare a tasty breakfast in short order and at a cost that will go a long way toward reducing the family budget.

The Remy company whose brands 'Home Guard' and 'White Frost' are old and established brand names, supply a great percentage of the retail stores in this area, including the Square Deal chain of stores Through its satisfactory dealings with retailers, the Remy company annually increases its scope in the Mansfield area and has shown rapid growth in the past decade.

NAMED AGAIN

GALION — All directors were re-elected at the annual meeting of stockholders of the U. S. Steel Grave Vault company held during the past week. Those who are serving are: J. B. Robinson, H. W. Todd, L. E. Place, E. R. Wisler and C. K. Cunningham.

Officers were also re-elected as follows: president, Robinson; vice presidents, Todd and Wisler; treasurer, Place; and secretary and manager, C. K. Cunningham

COOK BOOK OF 100 YEARS AGO REVEALS VARIETY OF CHANGES

The first day's program of the 1939 Gasco Food Institute entitled "Cooking Cavalcade" is devoted to a contrast between present day modern cooking and old-fashioned methods. While building this program in order to make the comparison genuine, an old-fashioned cook book said to be over 100 years old was consulted.

One can well imagine that a cook book edited in the early 19th century would reveal many interesting and noteworthy changes when compared to the modern recipe book of today.

In the old cook book, for example, the instructions for recipes were cumbersome at best and often quite indefinite. These are very much in contrast to the clear, concise form in which recipes are set forth in the cook books of today.

The table of contents of one of the old-fashioned cook books is quite interesting in itself. It contains subjects such as these: "Bills of Fare," "Fragments," "House Cleaning," "Housekeepers Alphabet," "Individual Manners," "The Management of Help," "The Laundry," "The Cellar and Ice-House," and many other subjects.

A notable impression which one receives in glancing over the contents of the recipes is the difference in time required to prepare foods years ago as compared with the modern kitchen equipment of today.

For example, the baking of bread which used to require "twelve hours with fair temperature and good yeast," can be baked in three to four hours today in the oven of a modern gas range.

This new method of home bread baking is demonstrated as part of the first day's program of the 1939 Gasco Food Institute, which opens tomorrow at the Ohio theater. Many other interesting comparisons will be made between modern methods and those of yesterday during the "Cooking Cavalcade" program, to be presented on the opening day of the Food Institute.

MODERN GAS RANGES LURE MEN TO CHOOSE COOKING AS HOBBY

Many prominent men who have turned to cooking as a hobby are gaining fame as pastime cooks. In fact, it has become a vogue in smart circles for men to prepare a repast for a group of friends in country home or city apartment.

It has become comparatively simple to follow a reliable recipe and have a savory dish result today because the modern gas range does the real work without pot-watching on the part of the cook.

Hobby cooks who once master a recipe usually depart from it by ways of variations of their own devising, or concoct original dishes, or stake their culinary reputations on unusual seasonings. That's where the fun comes in.

Among the repast creators who like to hover near their gas ranges with pans and spoons are theater folks, both men and women, whose names twinkle in the bright lights of both continents, authors and journalists read by millions, illustrators of international repute, men in high political offices, explorers, radio stars and some of the nation's favorite funsters. There's no telling what headliners are also culinary experts these days.

Hobby cooking is universal in scope. An eastern editor with a Harvard background leaves his desk to bake all the cakes for the family; a certain judge returns to his scenic home in the mountains and simmers onion soup for hours on his gas range; a Pacific coast publisher specializes in lentel soup and roast goose stuffed with sauerkraut — which proves that men do not stop at broiled steak —they explore the cook book and then turn to their gas range with zest.

Central Fruit Vegetables Used

The Central Fruit and Grocery company will play an important part in the 1939 Gasco Food institue, for it will provide many of the most important items for use by Miss Louise McFarland, director.

The Fancy brand is a leader in the field of quality canned foods and is distributed by all retail grocers buying from the Central Fruit company.

Sunsweet brand of Fancy prunes will be used at the school and Fancy brand of spices and seasonings will be in the well-stocked Gasco institute kitchen on the Ohio theater stage.

Another item of increasing importance in the kitchen which will be supplied by the Central Fruit will be "White Fur" kitchen towels, which do away with unsightly towels that have been used, and also save materially on the laundry, are becoming a necessity rather than a luxury in the modern kitchen.

Get Out of Rut With Meals

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Expert of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

Now that we have entered a new year let's start life anew by serving some entirely different and enticing recipes to the family.

With a new year, life begins again, but no housewife need find herself in a rut. Have you tried Baked Steak or Beef Roly-poly? And if they are not sufficiently exciting to arouse the family appetite, try a cream Liver Loaf.

One of those quick frozen desserts will be apricot Bavarian Pudding and there is an old-fashioned apple Pot Pie which is enjoying a revival of popularity.

Baked Steak with Lima Beans and Mushrooms.

2 pounds round steak
Salt
Pepper
1 small can mushrooms
1 small can green Lima beans

Have the butcher cut the steak thin or "The usual thickness" demanded by the majority for panfrying. With scissors, cut along the natural lines of demarcation, to remove all gristle and to make pieces shapely. Heat a skillet very hot, then grease lightly with fat cut from edge of steak; brown two or three pieces very quickly on both sides, sprinkling well on both sides with salt and pepper. Brown only a few pieces at a time, in order that juice may not cook out of the steak. Have skillet very hot, and rub lightly with a piece of fat only when needed. Avoid frying or slow cooking. As each piece is browned, put it on a platter. When browning is completed, put a trivet in bottom of skillet, lay pieces of steak on it, add contents of a can of mushrooms and a can of Luma beans, including the liquid. Cover closely and bake at 350 deg. Fah. about ninety minutes, or until tender.

Beef Roly-poly.

Temperature: 350 degrees Fahrenheit. Time: 40 minutes.
2 cups ground cooked meat
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minved green pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 egg, slightly beaten
Salt
Pepper
3 cups mashed potato
2 tablespoons minced parsley
6 strips bacon

To the beef add the onion, green pepper, Worcestershire sauce and egg. Season with salt and pepper. Pat out on a piece of heavy waxed paper to one-third inch in thickness. Mix the potato and parsley and shape in a roll. Place on the meat and wrap the meat around it, pressing the edges firmly together. Place in a baking pan, arrange the bacon over the top and bake.

Cream Liver Loaf
(Seventeen Thick Slices)

Temperature: 275 degrees Fahrenheit. Time: 60 minutes.
2 pounds sliced baby beef liver
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
3 soda crackers
1 cup cream
2 eggs
2½ teaspoons salt
Few grains pepper
Dash of cayenne
1 teaspoon melted butter
⅛ teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats

Plunge liver into boiling water salted with one teaspoon of salt and allow to heat until the liver is the same color in the center of the slices as on the outside; this evenness of color is important, but avoid cooking the liver so that it will become tough; the water must be held below the boiling point. Remove all membrane from the liver before putting through food chopper, unless the utensil sieves the separates as well as chops. Use the fine sieve or chopper to make the liver smooth and fine, and use the crackers in the food chopper to push through the last of the liver. Add well-beaten eggs and all other ingredients, mix well and pour into a thoroughly greased baking dish set in a pan containing hot water to the depth of one-half inch. Bake in a fully preheated oven until firm like a custard. Let cool thoroughly and turn out on a tray. Chill and cut in thick slices. If desired, garnish the tray with watercress and radish roses, and decorate the loaf with daisy petals cut from hard-cooked egg-white and daisy center of hard-cooked egg-yolk.

Cream, eggs and liver are nourishing foods needed in diets for normal persons and for those persons who have simple anemia.

Apricot Bavarian Pudding.
1 package prepared lemon gelatine
1 cup boiling water
1 cup apricot juice
½ pound dried apricots, cooked and drained
½ cup sugar
¾ cup heavy cream

Disolve the gelatine in the boiling water. Add the apricot juice and cool. When it begins to congeal, add apricot pulp and sugar. Fold in the beaten cream and turn into mould. Chill thoroughly.

Apple Pot Pie.
4 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup butter
Ice water
6 large tart apples
⅔ cup sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup butter

Sift salt and flour together. Cut in one-half a cup of butter and stir in enough water to moisten until it can be formed into a ball. Toss out on to a floured board, roll thin and cut in two-inch squares. Pare, core and cut apples in small pieces. Alternate layers of apples and squares of dough in a kettle. Sprinkle the apple layers generously with the sugar and spice mixture. Have a layer of dough on top and dot with butter. Half-fill the kettle with water, cover and cook over low flame until apples are soft. Serve with cream.

Hurry-Up Tarts

For a hurry-up dessert, fill tart cases (made from leftover pie dough) with fruit gelatin lightly mixed with whipped cream. Combine quickly and serve at once. If gelatin is not on hand use canned or fresh fruit. Apple sauce works deliciously.

Spice tips: A dash of nutmeg gives pep to buttered cooked spinach; a speck of cinnamon adds flavor to peach, pear, apple or prune sauces; a little cinnamon and cloves added to whipped cream used for topping puddings gives an interesting flavor; a teaspoon of mace gives a full flavor to old-fashioned pound cake; add some caraway seeds to cottage cheese, served with rye bread and plenty of hot coffee and you have a continental idea; stick whole cloves into apple slices, halves of peaches, pears or apricots, when glazed and served as fowl garnishes and sprinkle paprika mixed with celery seed over the top of cooked cauliflower for a change.

Good for Quick, Tasty Snack

This makes some good between-meal munching—a Brazil crumb cake. Two and one-half cups flour, 1¼ cups brown sugar, firmly packed, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup shortening, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon, 1 egg, well-beaten, ¾ cup sour milk or buttermilk, ¾ cup ground Brazil nuts. Mix flour, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture looks like corn meal. Reserve three-quarters of a cup of this mixture for topping. To remainder, add baking powder, soda and one teaspoon of cinnamon and mix well. Stir in well-beaten egg and sour milk or buttermilk and mix well. Turn mixture into two greased, eight-inch pans. Mix reserved flour-shortening mixture with remaining cinnamon and Brazil nuts and sprinkle over batter. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) for 25 minutes.

For the final appearance of the turkey let it be soup—but good soup. Place turkey carcass, any leftover gravy and stuffing, celery leaves and vegetables in a large kettle. Add four whole cloves, or peppercorns, one-half teaspoon of salt and some parsley sprigs for seasoning. Then cover with four inches of water. Cover and simmer about two hours or until the carcass is blanched. Strain, cool, remove any fat that comes to the surface and serve with plenty of toast or hot crackers. A really regal dish.

Date muffins, small ones, or very bumpy popovers are just the right partners for salads. With plenty of hot coffee and a light dessert you have a bridge foursome luncheon ready in a short time. Very filling too for wintertime.

Flavor Harmony with NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD

A. Why not try the Flavor Harmony Test during the next few meals? Start the test with a bite of bread;

B. NEXT you take a bite of meat, for instance. Then sit back and enjoy it to the fullest extent;

C. NOW, another bite of bread to enhance the flavor of the meat and get ready for the next food;

D. THEN you are ready to enjoy the sharp flavor of salad or the natural flavor of vegetables.

GASCO 1939 FOOD INSTITUTE

I endorse the Flavor Harmony Plan which Esther Kimmel asserts is the basic principle in menu planning and will demonstrate Nickles' Butter-Nut Bread at the 1939 Gasco Institute.
Miss McFarland.

Every modern home maker will discover how NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD steps up the flavor of all foods. It makes meals more alluring . . . more exciting. NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD is baked from a choice blend of perfectly balanced ingredients. Thus, NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD has the balanced flavor that makes ALL foods taste better.

See the FLAVOR HARMONY Test demonstrated by Miss McFarland. Prove to yourself that the balanced flavor of NICKLES' BUTTER-NUT BREAD does make all foods taste better.

Page Dairy Products Chosen Exclusively For the Institute!

Miss McFarland

For the second consecutive year, the Gasco Food Institute insisted on and chose Page Dairy Products for exclusive use and demonstration at all sessions of this outstanding cooking school. There's a reason . . . and we're going to let Miss Louise McFarland, capable conductor of this school to tell those reasons in her own words:

"The Gas Company conducts its annual Food Institute upon a high plane! We insist on securing the best and choicest of foods and dairy products for actual use and demonstration. That's why we are pleased and gratified that Page's Dairy Products have been secured for this school . . . for we know that Page's Milk, Page's Butter, Ice Cream and other dairy products are the best obtainable.

Through the Page Dairy Company, we extend a cordial invitation to every housewife in Mansfield to attend all three Food Institute sessions and to see these products used."

CHAPTER VI

Tuck went out after dinner so that Alix and her brother could be alone. At the door she turned and looked at them—the girl so eager to help, so devoted, the boy moody and embittered. Closing the door, Tuck thought, "It will be a big job getting him back on his feet. He thinks every one's against him. I've never seen any one so hungry. But he loves her. She's the only person in the world he loves."

Alix curled up in a chair. Tod smoked nervously.

What different paths lives took after childhood, she thought. As children she and Tod had been inseparable. Now he was almost a stranger to her, but a stranger she loved.

After a long silence she looked up and saw that he was stretched full length on the sofa, asleep. The cigarette still burned between his fingers. She put out the cigarette, went into the bedroom for a blanket, covered him, kissed his forehead, and then darkened the room. Asleep, there was no hardness, no bitterness in his face. It was the face of a boy. He had looked so long upon the hate of men for each other and women incapable of love that he had forgotten what it meant to be cared for and loved. Kurt . . . And because she loved Kurt who would never love her and because Tod was sick in mind and body, she put her hands to her face and wept softly.

The next morning she called Don and said she would not be at the office until the afternoon.

"We're going shopping," she said cheerfully to Tod at breakfast. "New clothes will make you feel much better. What happened to your things?"

He smiled. "They're on a boat that's in Africa now. You'd be ashamed to go downtown with me, looking like this."

"That's not true." She lay her hand over his. "You must stop thinking that you aren't as good as other people, Tod. You must. You must have pride in yourself just because you are yourself. You can't expect other people to respect you unless you respect yourself. It's the mental attitude that makes you what you are. You aren't a failure."

She went to the bank and drew a hundred dollars. It left a hundred and twenty-five dollars in her account. Then with Tod she went into a store that advertised moderately priced men's clothes.

When they came out, he was wearing a brown suit and topcoat and brown hat. And when they passed a mirror outside a restaurant, she saw him looking at himself furtively.

"I've got to get back to work now, Tod. I'll see you tonight. Go to a movie this afternoon."

She would not, she thought as she walked to the office, suggest that he find work for a couple of weeks. He needed rest and relaxation and comfort. He needed companionship and good food. And she would not ask Don to help him until she had exhausted every means she knew of finding him work.

When she went into Don's office with her notebook, he asked, "Were you on a party last night? Or did you oversleep this morning? No, you weren't on a party but I was. You look much too radiant and healthy. Nancy lectured me this morning as if she were a boarding-school mistress. Sally lectured. You never lecture, Alix. You're the only person who doesn't openly disapprove of me You're such a comfort."

She smiled "Did you want to dictate?"

"No. Come back later. I'm going to read a letter from my venerable mother in London who will also lecture What I need is someone to understand me. Somebody like you, Alix. Come back at five. I'll dictate then and take you to dinner."

"I can't have dinner with you tonight. I'm sorry."

He leaned forward and his eyes kindled. "Kurt?"

"No. Not Kurt. Some one in my family."

Why did he have to mention Kurt? It fastened her mind on him again. It made her see him in New York, meeting Gina Rowland again after a year. . . .

Later, when she came into Don's office again, he was standing by the window.

"Come and look at the sky, Alix."

And when she was standing close to him, he caught her in his arms and kissed her.

She broke away and faced him, her face gone white, her eyes blazing. Then, after a moment while she controlled her anger and disgust, she said, "Why did you do it, Don? I can't stay here now. I don't sell kisses with stenography. Money is power, isn't it? Girls have to allow themselves to be kissed by men old enough to be their fathers because they can't afford to lose their jobs!"

They faced each other across the office, half dark in the twilight. Alix thought, "I've known from the first that this would happen and bring to an end a job too good to be true."

Don reached for his cigarette case. "I'm terribly sorry. But that's a ridiculous thing to say when you've kissed a girl you've been wanting to kiss. But I'm sorry if I've offended you or frightened you. It won't happen again. I promise. Don't leave, Alix. If Nancy know, she'd despise me more than she does."

Sally opened the door quietly and saw them, saw Don inhaling on the cigarette deeply and Alix standing beside the large desk, her head lowered, her lips trembling. They did not see her and she closed the door quietly.

"Nancy doesn't despise you," Alix said finally. "She loves you —and Bernice . . ."

"So you've met Bernice?"

"Yes. And I liked her very much."

His mouth pulled at the corners. "Why bring her up? She's a closed chapter as far as I'm concerned." Going to the desk, he picked up a paper and looked at her over it. "You think I kissed you because you are just a lovely girl working for me, any lovely girl. I'm fond of you, Alix. Very fond of you. I'm a free man, you know. I've been free for six years." Leaning toward her, he smiled. "Won't you reconsider? I want you to stay. I won't offend you again."

"Don, I need my job more than ever now. I've some new responsibilities."

"Then I'm forgiven?" And when she nodded slowly, he smiled again. "That's better. A lot better. I'll let this contract go until morning and take you home."

For a week Alix was with Tod every night. His rough hands had healed but his dry cough kept her awake at night. When she suggested that he see a doctor, he shrugged and said, "Oh, that's from cigarets." Then went to pictures, took long walks at night, and on Sunday night when they passed a church, she said, "Let's go in," hoping that the service would make him recall their father's service.

Tuck said, "He'd forgotten how people live. He isn't a bad boy, Alix You don't know what he's been through. He's like somebody who's been whipped. He won't talk of his experiences."

She was alone with Tod one night.

She asked, "Do you remember when we were children, Tod, how we used to talk on our way to and from school to make the walk less long and to make time go faster? We used to talk of the things we were going to do when we grew up. We were very sure we were going to be rich and famous. I suppose all children think that."

"You don't have a chance any more," he said, looking down at his hands. "When you're down, they keep pushing you down. There's no such thing as opportunity. You can't go on keeping me, Alix. I won't let you! That's why a lot of fellows run away to sea. They can't get jobs and they don't want to live on their families. I'm—I'm no good."

She said softly, "Every one has the same equipment. You can't run to the nearest exit. You have to create yourself. You have to know what you want to do and do it, and not let anything stop you." She went to him and put her arms around him. "Let's go for a walk. It's such a nice night."

"I wish I could feel about things the way you do," he said. "But all your talking won't change my mind. I'm—I'm a misfit. Better out of the world than in it. I'm a bum."

When the apartment was darkened and Tuck was breathing evenly and deeply in the next bed, Alix lay with opened eyes looking out the window at the stars trailing the moon. Reaching for the stars . . . She was reaching for the stars when she loved Kurt. The clock struck four times faintly. If only Tod would use his strength instead of draining hers. If only Tod would reach for the stars. . . .

"Take evening clothes with you to New York," she said, standing over Alix's cluttered desk. "You know father. He can work all day and play all night. Kurt's still there. That'll make a foursome. It's going to be fun."

* * *

Nancy was not jealous of her and Don, Alix thought gratefully when Nancy had gone. Her hands paused on the typewriter keys. Questions tormented her, questions about Tod's future and the part that she, an outsider, seemed destined to play in the tangled, unhappy lives of the Lawrences. Eddie had not called. No doubt he was working at night.

For her, she wondered? Toward a promotion which would give him the confidence to ask him to marry her?

Her mind drifted to New York and Kurt. . . . Dancing in Kurt's arms again, conscious of his nearness, hoping, hoping . . . "I'm dreaming," she thought. But it was good to escape harsh reality and dream a little. . . .

PATHOLOGIST EXPERIMENTS ON DEVICE MAKING 'CANNED BLOOD'

(By United Press)

DALLAS, Tex. — A pathologist experimented today with a dehydrating machine which will permit the storage safely of huge quantities of powdered blood for transfusions.

Chief problem of "canned" or storage blood for emergency injection into patients' veins has been its preservation. Costly refrigeration and elaborate technique is involved.

But the machine devised by Dr. J. M. Hill at Baylor hospital dries the serum and preserves it for instant use when mixed with distilled water.

The machine, employing a vacuum principle to remove the water, reduces the time required for typing blood from one hour to only 15 minutes, another important factor where emergency transfusions are required. The blood of humans is classified into four major types and any addition to the circulatory system must match that blood specifically.

Hill said that powdered blood could not be used in all instances. In cases of extreme loss of blood, he said, it would be ineffectual because the drying process removes essential red cells.

"Actual blood will always be needed, in many kinds of transfusions," he said, "but the dried blood will have a number of uses and will cut the cost of storage.

"The preparation is a process similar to dehydrating vegetables. The blood, after it is drawn from a human being, is clotted to remove the cells, giving us a serum. The serum, when placed under a vacuum freezes itself by loss of water vapor and comes out a powder.

"The principal value of the machine will be reduction of large quantities of blood and can be stored in bulk, ready for instant use."

Hill, conservative as to ultimate benefit of powdered blood, said that similar experiments were being conducted in hospitals of several states. His experiments, he said, involved the kind of cases in which his dried blood could be used successfully.

Quakes Renewal Called Good Sign By Seismologists

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Renewal of earthquakes in Southern California, is looked upon by seismologists as a good sign.

"Resumption of normal activity is a good sign, for there has been quite an interval of quiet."

He explained that in the past year, while many other sections of the world had violent earthquakes, California was quiet. Periods of quiet, seismologists and geologists feel generally, are not normal in sections where mountains are growing, and such quiet indicated that stresses are being built up and perhaps the situation may lead to a serious condition where a heavy relieving shock might occur.

The resumption of activity in the form of minor shocks is regarded as healthy in relieving stresses and making less likely a heavy shock due to long stored-up energy stresses.

U. S. AIR BASE IN PUERTO RICO BELIEVED NEAR

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The establishment of a United States air base in Puerto Rico, now regarded by naval observers as a virtual certainty, will go far toward making this country's control of the Caribbean "airtight," competent sources believe today.

The area southeast of Puerto Rico has long been regarded as the weakest link in the United States' otherwise formidable chain of defenses in the Caribbean. The Lesser Antilles, consisting of a string of small islands stretching from Puerto Rico to the east coast of South America, contain numerous passages through which hostile vessels might slip for an attack on the Panama Canal or other vital points in the Caribbean area.

Stands As Half-Way Point.

The establishment of an air base at San Juan would place United States air forces roughly at a midway pont between North and South America and enable aircraft to maintain a constant patrol of the eastern Caribbean.

In addition, Puerto Rico proper has no harbors capable of taking care of the fleet, and no proposal for the establishment of a navy base there is being discussed at present, but the island of Culebra, just to the east, could easily accommodate numerous large warships in case of emergency.

Although an air base at San Juan will vastly improve this country's defensive position in the Caribbean, it will not eliminate all weaknesses in this area. Strategists feel the United States' position could be strengthened to a point near invulnerability through the acquistion of additional naval or air establishments just off the South American mainland and a point between there and Puerto Rico.

The Puerto Rican base would give the United States its easternmost position in the Atlantic. San Juan is about 600 miles east of the United States naval base at Guantanamo.

An air base here would be of great importance in the event the United States were to go to the aid of one of the South American nations. Vessels and planes from the United States' east coast could be afforded considerable protection en route to the area of hostilities.

It is reported the base will cost approximately $4,000,000. A special naval board, authorized by Congress, has been studying the question of new bases and it is expected the recommendation for the San Juan base will be submitted to congress for approval.
